Rioting Katanga Students Stone United States Consulate

Mob Opposes UN Position In The Congo

Tear Down Flag, Break Windows, Shout Abuse

By JOHN LATZ

ELISABETHVILLE, Katanga, the Congo (AP)—Shouting "Down with Kennedy!" Katanga University students stoned the U.S. consulate Thursday and then sang the praises of the British and French.

The demonstrations were sparked by announcement that the United States is sending military aid to United Nations forces in the Congo to support the campaign to end Katanga's secession.

President Moise Tshombe, at a news conference, blamed the United States for prolonging the Congo's "miseries" and threatened to "apply the scorched earth policy" in his mineral-rich province rather than give in to military pressure.

Guards Are Called

Tshombe's own guards had to be called out to break up the attack on the U.S. consulate.

About 150 screaming students—both African and white—ripped down the American flag, let loose a rock barrage breaking all windows in the building, and set fire to a shack on the grounds.

Consul Jonathan Dean and his staff looked at the demonstration from the balcony, then took cover inside.

The students moved on to the French and British consulates where they held friendly demonstrations.

The students thanked Consul Derek Dodson for Britain's stand in the Congo crisis of caution toward imposing a pressure boycott on Katanga.

Keeps Crisis Stirred

Speaking to newsmen at the mining township of Kolwezi, 200 miles from Elisabethville, Tshombe accused the United States—and particularly U.S. Ambassador Edmund A. Gullion—of turning a deaf ear to his proposals, and with keeping the Congo crisis stirred up.

The United States has supported U.N. Secretary-General U Thant's move to put an economic squeeze on Katanga unless the rebellious province bows to the authority of the central Congo government.

Tshombe has made gestures toward sharing the revenues from the copper and cobalt mines in his prosperous province and has offered to go along with a new federal constitution for the Congo, provided Katanga retains a wide degree of autonomy.

But negotiations with Premier Cyrille Adoula of the Leopoldville regime—backed by the United Nations and the United States—have failed to make much headway toward unifying the country.

High-Level U.S. Mission Leaves For Katanga

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—A high-level U.S. military mission headed for the Congo on Thursday after talks with key U.N. officials on supplying new military equipment for the U.N. Congo force. There have been officially expressed fears that the Soviet Union is awaiting a chance to step into the Congo in a military way.

Lt. Gen. Louis Truman, head of the mission, said anti-U.S. rioting in Elisabethville, capital of secessionist Katanga Province, would not change his plans.

U.S. sources declared dispatch of the mission was in line with support of Secretary-General U Thant's plan to end the secession. The informants added that failure of the plan would bring chaos to central Africa and afford an opportunity for Soviet intervention there.

Five Airmen Die In Crash On Okinawa

NAHA, Okinawa (AP)—Waved off coming in for a landing, a U.S. Air Force KB50 tanker plane faltered trying to regain altitude Thursday and crashed into a farm house where a family was eating dinner.

The Air Force said five of the seven crewmen aboard the plane and two Okinawans—including a year-old baby—were killed. The two surviving crewmen were rushed to an Army hospital and six Okinawans—members of the same family — were injured.

The four-engine flying tanker, based at Yokota, Japan, had swung in for a landing at Kadena Air Base. The Air Force said the plane was waved off by the tower and an engine failed when it tried to pick up speed for another approach.

Hoffa Trial Enters Final Stages Today

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—The James R. Hoffa conspiracy trial moved into another secret session late Thursday after the defense concluded its closing arguments.

The hour-long closed session, held at the government's request, delayed completion of the prosecution's final arguments until Friday morning. The nine-week-old U.S. District Court trial is expected to reach the jury by afternoon.

There was no hint of what occurred at the secret session, which newsmen were permitted to witness through small glass panels in the courtroom door. But after a similar session two weeks ago a woman juror was replaced by an alternate.

Neither the judge nor attorneys would say why she was removed and these same persons declined to comment on the reason for Thursday's unexpected session.

Hoffa, president of the 1.5-million-member Teamsters Union, is charged with conspiring to violate the Taft-Hartley Act by using his union influence to form a profitable trucking business.

Z. T. Osborn Jr., concluding the defense's 3½-hour summation, told the jury the government's case was built on "a tissue of half-truths and distortions."

The government contends Hoffa and Commercial Carriers, Inc., Detroit automobile-hauling firm, conspired to set up and operate Test Fleet Corp. for the benefit of the Teamsters president. Commercial Carriers' purpose was to insure labor peace, the prosecution says.

Three Men Rob U.S. Mail At Boston

Holdup Similar To $1.5 Million Theft In August

By PETER S. RICHARDS
United Press International

BOSTON (UPI) — Three bandits, one disguised as a postman, hijacked a U.S. mail truck Thursday night and escaped with at least three large sacks of registered mail reportedly containing "a large amount of money."

The robbery, the second of its type in little more than four months, paralleled in some ways the method of operation of the bandit gang that hijacked a mail truck near Plymouth, Mass., last Aug. 14, escaping with $1.5 million in cash. The Plymouth holdup was the nation's largest cash robbery.

Police said the hijacking occurred at 6:35 p.m. EST after the man dressed in the postman's uniform hitched ride on the truck just as it was leaving the Boston Post Office's Field's Corner station in the city's Dorchester section.

John J. Sullivan, 65, of East Milton, a 26-year postal service veteran, was the driver of the truck. He told police that the "postman" emerged from the shadows near the loading platform at Field's Corner just as he was pulling away and asked for a ride to the south postal annex, about five miles away.

Described As A "Punk"

The postman, described by the driver later to police as a "young punk," told Sullivan his car had broken down and he was due at the annex to do some part-time work because of the Christmas rush.

After the small van-type truck started along Leonard Street the postman suddenly pulled a gun and put it to Sullivan's head. "This is no joke," he said, and ordered the elderly driver, who suffers from a heart ailment, to take the truck down several dark side streets.

Two blocks away, at the corner of Clayton Street, two other men in civilian clothes jumped from behind the loading platform of a beer distributor's warehouse and boarded the vehicle.

One of them pointed his pistol at Sullivan and rasped, "Okay, you've got 10 seconds to do what we tell you or we'll blow your head off. You know where the money is. Tell us where it is."

They then made Sullivan put his head between his knees and crouch under the dashboard while they drove a short distance east along Clayton Street to Fento Street. There, the men loaded at least three padlocked mail sacks into a waiting sedan and headed northerly along Fenton Street.

Pale From Ordeal

Sullivan, still pale from his ordeal, said that all the while "I thought I would get a bullet in the back of my head."

He said the getaway car appeared to be a black and white sedan, but admitted that he could not be sure. He said the men did not tie him up.

Postal inspectors arrived at the scene within minutes. One of them was Luther H. Finerfrock, an investigator who has worked since last Aug. 14 on the still unsolved Plymouth mail robbery.

Finerfrock carefully wrapped the keys to the mail truck in his handkerchief, hustled Sullivan into his car along with another inspector, and headed for the Federal Building in downtown Boston.

Authorities at the Federal Building said afterwards that no details would be released until Sullivan had been thoroughly questioned.

In the Plymouth robbery, a bandit gang armed with sawed-off shotguns hijacked a mail truck and escaped with $1.5 million in cash, the largest cash haul in the nation's history. One of the gang was disguised as a policeman.

$200 Million Released For Public Works

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy has released nearly $200 million to speed up work on job-generating public works projects, Secretary of Commerce Luther H. Hodges announced Thursday.

This is Kennedy's second allocation from a $400-million accelerated public works program passed by the last session of Congress. Congress authorized a $900-million program, and appropriated $400 million for immediate use.

Kennedy made his first allocation of $165 million on Oct. 24.

Hodges said $119.1 million has been assigned to specific state and local projects, and $42.9 million to direct federal projects.

In the second allocation of $197.6 million, $147 million will go for state and local projects and $50 million for direct federal projects in eligible areas of the country. These are areas designated having high unemployment.

Various federal agencies now will decide which projects will be financed by the new allocation funds.

UN Abolishes Mission Post In Hungary

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The U.N. General Assembly has abolished its one-man watchdog mission set up to deal with the Hungarian problem after the 1956 uprising.

Some critics, including Hungarian refugee leaders, expressed fear that the United Nations was getting ready to wash its hands of the Hungarian question altogether. The special representative himself, Sir Leslie Munro of New Zealand, told newsmen it was "a bad business."

But the United States, which sponsored the move Thursday, declared that it was "the farthest thing from a liquidation" of the issue. Under the resolution, the assembly still keeps a hand in the situation by asking Secretary-General U Thant to "take any initiative that he deems helpful in relation to the Hungarian position."

The U.S. proposal was approved 50-13 as the 110-nation assembly drove toward adjournment of its 17th session which began last Sept. 18 and carried on under the shadow of the Cuban crisis.

The approved resolution expressed concern that Munro had been unable to discharge his responsibilities fully because the Russians and Hungarians refused to deal with him. In the circumstances, it said, there was no need to continue the post. Munro has been getting approximately $11,000 a year in pay and expense allowances.

One of the notable things about the current assembly session was the fact that it was finishing its work ahead of Friday night's closing deadline. Diplomats attributed this partly to the Cuban crisis and the Indian-Chinese conflict which seemed to put a damper on long-winded speeches on secondary issues.

Physician Returns With Donovan To Talk With Castro

Work Continues On Supplies For Exchange Of 1,113 Prisoners

HAVANA (AP) — Former U. S. Surgeon General Leonard Scheele accompanied negotiator James B. Donovan to Havana from Miami, Fla., on Thursday in an effort to speed liberation of 1,113 Cuba invasion prisoners.

Scheele will serve as consultant in ransom talks with Fidel Castro. He will answer questions about the type of medical supplies offered in exchange for the captives.

Donovan had returned to Miami from Havana for overnight conferences with U.S. officials. The New York lawyer made no statement before taking off from Miami on his fourth flight to Havana since ransom bargaining with Castro began.

Hope persisted in many quarters that the prisioners might be in Miami this weekend.

At Port Everglades, Fla., the freighter African Pilot arrived from Baltimore, Md., and was ready to load millions of dollars of pharmaceuticals and foodstuffs donated for the American Red Cross-sponsored operation.

At Homestead, Fla., government officials continued preparations for receiving the men who had been captured in the unsuccessful April 17, 1961, Bay of Pigs invasion, if they are freed.

Plans called for flying them to Homestead Air Force Base aboard charter airliners. After being processed, the men would be taken to Miami's Bayfront Park for reunion with loved ones. Arrangements were being made with hospitals for treatment of ailing prisoners.

At Miami's Opa-locka airfield, stockpiling of ransom supplies proceeded, with donations arriving by plane, truck and train. The total received was reported at $33 million. This compared with Castro's $53 million demand.

Youth Quizzed In Slaying Of Teen-Age Girl

NOVI, Mich. (AP) — Insisting "I don't know why I did it." James G. Gostlin, 20, was charged with murder Thursday in the hammer slaying of Shirley Husted, a neighbor's teen-age daughter.

Shirley, 13, one of four daughters of school bus driver Wesley Husted, was slain when, police said, Gostlin broke into the home shortly after midnight Wednesday terrorized the family, and kidnaped the mother. Husted also was beaten with the hammer and was hospitalized in critical condition.

After freeing the mother, Rita Husted, 33, miles away in Dearborn, Gostlin walked into Dearborn police headquarters, put the hammer on a table, and said, "I just killed two people."

Police said Gostlin had been drinking for hours.

DeGaulle Honors General Norstad

PARIS (UPI) — President Charles de Gaulle Thursday pinned France's highest honor on retiring Supreme Allied Commander Gen. Lauris Norstad, then kissed him on both cheeks in the French manner.

With Premier Georges Pompidou and high-ranking military officers of several nations standing at attention, De Gaulle pinned a red cordon on Norstad's tunic.

"General Norstad, we raise you to the dignity of the Grand Cross of the Legion of Honor," De Gaulle said in French as he faced Norstad.

Navy Satellite Completely Dead

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Navy's new Transit 5A navigational satellite has gone completely dead, apparently indicating that the trouble was in its power supply, it was disclosed Thursday.

Train, Truck Collide, Three Or More Killed

OKEECHOBEE, Fla. (AP) — A northbound Seaboard Air Line Railroad passenger train and a truck collided Thursday in south central Florida.

The Miami-to-New York train burst into flames.

Estimates of the dead ranged from three, by the sheriff's office, to seven, by the Florida Highway Patrol. Officers said the injured might total as many as 35.

At least one member of the train crew was reported pinned in the wreckage.

A reporter on the scene said the dead apparently included two trainmen and the truck driver.

The collision occurred at a crossing a mile northwest of Okeechobee.

Evans said the train struck the truck broadside and several railroad passenger cars split open and overturned.

C.B. Bates, superintendent for the railroad in Jacksonville, said he did not know how many passengers were aboard the train.

Ignatov To Head Russian Republic

MOSCOW (AP)—Soviet Deputy Premier Nikolai G. Ignatov has been named president of the Russian Federated Republic, replacing Nikolai N. Organov.

The Moscow radio announcement Thursday of the government switch made no mention of the reason for the shuffle or what Organov's new job would be.

The action was taken at the session of the Supreme Soviet of the Russian Federated Republic meeting here. It is the largest of the Soviet Union's 15 republics.

Esso Contributes To College Center

BETHANY, W. Va. (UPI)—The $1,250,000 price tag on the new Robert Richardson Hall of Science building at Bethany College looked a little smaller Thursday after Esso Foundation tossed a $5,000 check into the kitty.

President Perry E. Gresham said the check brought to $9,000 the amount given by Esso toward the building. Construction will begin early next year.

JFK And Mac Agreeing On Many Issues

Summit Talks Prove Fruitful; To End Today

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

NASSAU, Bahamas (AP)—President Kennedy is reported to have agreed tentatively to supply Polaris missiles to Britain provided an independent British striking force eventually becomes part of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization nuclear deterrent. The Polaris would take the place of the disputed Skybolt.

Diplomatic informants said Thursday those are the main elements of an accord hammered out in 14 hours or more of the Nassau little summit conference, which will run into an additional day Friday.

Mac Is Pleased

Prime Minister Harold Macmillan was represented as highly pleased with the solution of a dispute that has frayed U.S.-British relations.

Macmillan has called a Cabinet meeting in London for Friday to consider the proposed deal and advise him on it. He was sending the Cabinet a full report.

Subject to possible further negotiations here as well as to the Cabinet session in London, an agreement probably will be concluded before the scheduled wind-up of the meeting Friday noon.

But U.S. officials cautioned that the project conceivably could still fall through.

Proved Embarrassing

British informants first told of the Polaris-Skybolt trade and other reported elements of the draft accord to British newsmen here. The Skybolt controversy has proved highly embarrassing to Macmillan within Britain. He had planned to develop the Royal Air Force as a nuclear deterrent by arming British warplanes with the Skybolt air-to-target weapon.

According to the British version, Kennedy offered to let the British take over the Skybolt development at the very outset of the meeting Tuesday.

But Skybolt is an airborne missile of 1,000-mile range which has failed five tests, and Kennedy had already decided against U.S. development of it. And he advised Macmillan not to go on with the Skybolt program.

Macmillan was represented as pleased with Kennedy's explanation of the problems of Skybolt development by contrast with the well-proved Polaris weapon.

Highly Mobile

The Polaris is a very mobile missile capable of being fired from submarines or other moving platforms, and its range is 1,800 miles.

Kennedy evidently feels that he is striking a major blow for European defense integration and against the growth of independent nuclear forces within the alliance.

Kennedy and Macmillan began discussion of U.S. and Commonwealth arms aid to India and of general India-China problems Thursday afternoon.

The issues growing out of the emotion-charged Skybolt problems have overshadowed all other matters which had been expected to provide the grist for the diplomatic mill at this conference. However, Kennedy and Macmillan threw their prestige Wednesday behind new efforts to push unification of the Congo and they were expected to return to the threatened central African crisis before they leave here.

Friday the two will take up Britain's bid for entry into the European Common Market, which Kennedy strongly favors, officials said.

Search For Missing Plane Called Off

BAKER, Calif. (UPI) — Search and rescue units Thursday night called off a widespread hunt for an aircraft reported down on the desert between here and Death Valley.

Officials said a four-engine airplane presumed to be flying low over the area had landed safely at Beale Air Force Base in northern California.

It was believed smoke trailing from the low-flying airplane led to the report that a plane was down. It was not in trouble.

An air and ground search revealed only an old target drone, and there were no reports of any commercial or military aircraft overdue.

Six Million Union Workers To Get Pay Increases In 1963

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Labor Department reported Thursday that at least six million workers under major union contracts will get pay increases in 1963 or be subject to raises in collective bargaining.

The department published two studies by its Bureau of Labor Statistics, one surveying the extent of pay raises already negotiated and becoming effective in the new year; the other detailing major labor contracts due either to expire or to permit revision of pay rates.

Altogether about 3.3 million workers are due to receive deferred pay raises. By rough calculation from the figures provided, this will boost industry's annual wage cost by a billion dollars.

In addition, about 1.2 million workers are covered by contracts expiring in 1963. Another 1.7 million have contracts subject to wage reopening. Finally, an estimated 1.1 million could get 1963 pay raises through automatic living-cost adjustments provided in their agreements.

Bargaining in the steel industry, which kicked up a fuss involving President Kennedy in early 1962, could again become the chief focus in the labor-management field in the coming year.

The 1962 steel agreement, which was followed by industry price increases quickly canceled under Kennedy administration pressure, provided for no wage increases. Instead it was stipulated wage rates could be reopened in May 1963, with Aug. 1 a possible strike deadline.

Among some of the major contracts due to expire in the new year are those in the telephone industry, covering some 350,000 workers; clothing manufacturing, 175,000; rubber manufacturing 72,000, and electrical manufacturing, about 185,000. The latter includes the big General Electric and Westinghouse agreements.

Other than steel, the major industries in which wage rates are subject to reopening are the railroads and airlines.

Of the 3.3 million workers due to receive deferred pay raises more than 1.8 million are in manufacturing, mainly in the auto, auto parts, farm equipment, aerospace, meatpacking, canning, and apparel industries. This group also includes at least 600,000 construction workers and nearly a million truck drivers and employes in retail trade.

Pan Am - TWA Airlines Agree To Merger

Combination Creates Big U.S. System

Billion Dollar Company Covers 80,000 Miles

By ROGER LANE
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Directors of Pan American World Airways and Trans World Airlines proposed Thursday to weld the two carriers into a single $1.2-billion system with 80,000 miles of routes.

The new unit would supplant United Air Lines as the country's largest air transportation company, and exceed in size even the proposed combine of American and Eastern Air Lines.

Juan T. Trippe, Pan Am president, and Charles C. Tillinghast, president of TWA, said the merger agreement will be filed Friday with the Civil Aeronautics Board. CAB approval is required.

Growing Tendancy

The proposal was another reflection of growing merger tendencies in air, rail and highway segments of American public transportation.

It came only three weeks after a CAB examiner recommended rejection of the American-Eastern union bid on monopoly grounds. American, TWA and Eastern rank after United in that order in size of domestic air carriers. TWA falls into this category despite its overseas operations.

There was no indication of what, if any, objections would come from various affected labor unions, which have fought some pending railroad and airline mergers fearing loss of jobs.

44,000 Employes

Trippe, who would head the new system as board chairman and chief executive officer, said the merger would not eliminate jobs. Between them, Pan Am and TWA have about 44,000 employes.

The proposed union would fuse a prosperous overseas carrier, Pan Am, with a money-losing operator primarily in the domestic field, TWA.

Pan Am netted $8.9 million in 1961 while TWA plunged $14.7 in the red, not including a $24 million writedown on obsolete equipment.

Tillinghast would be president of the new operating company.

Under the complicated proposal, a new company would be set up, Pan American World Airlines, to operate the routes and aircraft fleets of both the present Pan Am and TWA.

CAB Policy

The result would convert the existing Pan American World Airways into a holding company. TWA would drop out of the picture as a corporate entity.

For the CAB, the plan raises a question of policy—whether to abandon or encourage the principle of competition between American carriers on the busy North Atlantic route.

In the past it has stood for competition.

However, since early 1946 the number of international carriers has mushroomed from three to 18, with 16 operating under foreign flags. The foreign lines have seized the bulk of business.

Embezzlement Charged To Postmistress

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—Mrs. Josephine Allison, postmaster at nearby Deale, Md., has been arrested by U. S. postal inspectors on charges of embezzling money from the mails intended for charitable organizations.

She was arraigned before U. S. Commissioner, Samuel W. H. Meloy at Upper Marlboro Thursday afternoon, where she waived preliminary hearing and was released in $1,000 bond pending appearance before U. S. District Court in Baltimore.

The 50-year-old postmistress was arrested by two postal inspectors and an Anne Arundel County policeman about 6:30 Wednesday night as she and a companion were leaving the Deale Post Office.

The inspectors said they found in her purse letters and money addressed to the Anne Arundel County Tuberculosis Association. The investigation started after several persons in the Deale area complained that donations they had mailed had not been received by the society.

The specific charge against Mrs. Allison was unlawfully embezzling mail entrusted to her use, while acting in her official capacity, and which was intended to be mailed.

Reds Pledge To Halt Nuclear Tests Jan. 1

GENEVA (AP) — The Soviet Union declared Thursday it will stop all nuclear testing by Jan. 1 only if the United States and Britain formally pledge to do the same. The Western powers rejected any idea of an unpoliced moratorium.

The Soviet delegate, Semyon K. Tsarapkin, made the statement in the year's last meeting of the 17-nation disarmament talks.

The talks recessed for Christmas and are scheduled to resume Jan. 15.

The recess found the negotiations still in deadlock, and the final 1962 session was marked by a flurry of harsh words.

Tsarapkins' statement conflicted with reports from London that the United States and Britain regard as imminent a one-sided Soviet declaration to stop testing.

Diplomatic sources in London said the two Western powers anticipated such a Soviet move after analyzing Tsarapkin's remarks during the last phase of the Geneva talks. They consider this a Soviet attempt to get around Western demands for efficient test ban controls and on-site inspection. The Soviet Union has repeatedly rejected Western requirements for policing a test ban.

Western spokesmen in Geneva said the Soviet Union apparently expects to gain public support by being the first to say it will stop testing and thereby put pressure on the United States and Britain to follow suit. Moscow could take credit before world opinion for having initiated a worldwide testing truce.

U.S. Ambassador Arthur H. Dean and British Delegate Sir Michael Wright have told Tsarapkin their governments, mindful of their previous experience with similar Soviet pledges, will not be a party to any uncontrolled test ban arrangement.

Eight Dairies Indicted For Price Fixing

BALTIMORE (AP)—A federal grand jury indicted eight Baltimore dairies Thursday on charges of price fixing.

The jury accused the dairies with conspiring to fix the price of milk in the Baltimore metropolitan area.

Named in the indictment, which was handed down by the panel after hearing evidence in the cases for eight months, were the H. E. Koontz Creamery, Inc., and George C. Oursler, president; Sealtest Foods, a division of National Dairy Products Corp., and John M. Lescure, general manager.

Also, Green Spring Dairy, Inc., and James J. Ward Sr., president, and James J. Ward Jr., vice president; Cloverland Farms Dairy Inc.; Royal Farms Dairy, Inc.; Will's Dairy, Inc.; Wilton Farm Dairy, Inc.; High's of Baltimore, Inc.; and C. Y. Stephens, vice president and Clyde Shugart, secretary - treasurer; and William Sears Hebb, a partner in Aristocrat Dairy.

One federal indictment named the Milk Distributors Association, Inc.

The indictments charged that the conspiracy started before 1956 and continued into the late fall of 1960.

A similar anti-trust case involving some of the same dairies, which were convicted last February of rigging the prices of milk sold to schools, resulted in heavy fines.

Rescue Crews Reach Crashed Plane In Brazil

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) —Two ground expeditions have reached the wreckage of an airliner that crashed in the Amazon jungle six days ago and found all 50 persons aboard were dead, Paniar do Brasil announced Thursday.

The bodies were reported badly mutilated and the four-engine Constellation demolished.

The airline said members of the search parties were clearing an area near the wreckage 30 miles from the port city of Manaus so helicopters can land. The bodies will be brought out as soon as this is accomplished, the announcement said.

The plane disappeared early Dec. 14 on the last leg of a 2,500-mile, 35-hour trip from Rio de Janeiro. The control at Manaus said it lost contact shortly after the pilot, a veteran of the run, radioed that he was preparing to land.

Russia Sets Off Nuclear Device

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Russia set off a low-yield nuclear device in the Arctic atmosphere Thursday, the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission reported.

It was the 35th announced test in the current Soviet series, and the third in as many days. Two explosions were detected by this country Tuesday.

Thursday's blast was over Novaya Zemlya, the Russian test site in the Arctic. Low yield is the equivalent of less than 20,000 tons of TNT.

U.S. Army Helicopters Fly Santa Claus To Tiny Western Enclave In Communist East Germany

BERLIN (UPI) — Four U.S. Army helicopters flew Santa Claus and loads of toys and other presents to children in a tiny Western enclave in Communist East Germany despite Soviet warnings.

A Fifth Army helicopter flew over East Berlin in a further demonstration of U.S. determination to exercise its right in, around and over the divided city.

Last August the Soviets said such flights over Communist German territory were "illegal" and warned that the helicopters might be shot down. The U.S. ignored the warnings and the flights have continued.

The flight over East Berlin Wednesday was the first since Nov. 8. It brought an immediate protest from the Soviets at Berlin's Four-Power Air Safety Center. Western officials described the protest as routine and said no reply was necessary.

The helicopter hovered over East Berlin for about 40 minutes without incident.

A short time later, four helicopters carrying Santa and bundles of presents flew over one mile of East German territory to the tiny American sector enclave of Steinstuecken.

Santa, PFC. Winfred Radach (home town unavailable), distributed the toys and presents to children in the hamlet of 159 persons cut off from the American sector of West Berlin by a peculiarity of the city's border.

Steinstuecken was made part of the West Berlin borough of Zehlendorf, now part of the U.S. sector, when the city's borders were redrawn in 1920 because it then was farmland belonging to Zehlendorf farmers.

Americans can travel to the hamlet only by air because it is surrounded by Communist territory.

The toy lift was organized by the U.S. MP Company that maintains a four-man patrol in the hamlet. The patrols were ordered by Gen. Lucius D. Clay after the Communists built the anti-refugee wall in August o. 1961.

West Berliners learned Wednesday that they would be continued to be barred from visiting friends and relatives on the other side of the wall during the Christmas holidays.

FBI Recovers Part Of Loot In Bank Theft

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP) — The FBI said Thursday it had recovered some of the $7,591 taken in an armed holdup of the Sharptown, Md., branch of the Maryland National Bank last Monday.

The Columbus office of the FBI said it recovered more than $1,000 after agents arrested William Emrich Webster, 22, of Hebron, Md., and charged him in the holdup. Agents also confiscated a car Webster had purchased for $2,000.

Webster was jailed in lieu of $25,000 bond and was awaiting his return to Maryland, expected Friday. He has waived extradition.

Webster was released last week from the Maryland House of Correction, where he served one year for passing bogus checks.

The stock youth was arrested on a Columbus expressway by two motorcycle officers. The FBI said he had taken a taxi from Sharptown on Maryland's Eastern Shore to Friendship International Airport near Baltimore, where he boarded a plane and flew to Columbus.

Girl Crossing Country With Donkey Companion

CLIFTON, N.J. (UPI) — Pretty, 22-year-old Jane McMillan is just like any other girl on her way to Califrnia from Europe with a donkey in her Volkswagon.

Casually removing the right front seat from her small convertible, the blonde, blue-eyed native of the Golden State spread some straw on the car floor, helped the donkey aboard and headed from the government animal quarantine station here, where the donkey had been for several weeks.

The car seat was shipped home by freight.

Home to Jane is Los Olivos, Calif. where her parents own an 80-acre walnut grove. She said she hopes to make it by Christmas Eve.

Both the donkey — the size of an overfed police dog — and the car — a little bigger — were picked up in Europe. The car she bought in Germany. The donkey she picked up in the wild of Greece when natives told her it would freeze to death in the winter.

After touring Greece with the donkey riding stylishly in the car —much to the envy of the natives —she decided it was time to come home.

She paid a freighter $50 to let the animal ride across the Atlantic in a lavatory.

FBI Apprehends Wanted Fugitive

CHICAGO (UPI) — John Lee Taylor, 29, newly added to the FBI's list of 10 most wanted fugitives, was arrested here Thursday.

The FBI said Taylor was seized by agents in a Chicago apartment where he was living with a female acquaintance.

When agents entered the front door, the FBI said, Taylor yelled and bolted for the rear exit right into the arms of other waiting agents.

"I knew you guys would get me," he was quoted as saying. "When you guys get on a guy, they don't have a chance."

Gas Rate Cut Is Acceptable

WASHINGTON (AP) — A proposed $2.3 million annual reduction in wholesale natural gas rates by transcontinental Gas Pipeline Corp., Houston, Tex., was accepted Thursday by the Power Commission.

The company sells gas to 75 utility customers in Alabama, Georgia, South and North Carolina, Virginia, Maryland, Delaware, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and New York.

State Police Assign Extra Holiday Patrols

State Waging War On Mishaps And Violators

By The Associated Press

Extra patrols will be started by the State Police when the long Christmas holiday gets under way Friday.

A spokesman at Pikesville said Thursday patrols would be stepped up, although more cars have been patroling roads the past two months in an effort to curb the state's soaring fatality toll.

The death of two more persons Thursday increased the death count of 1962 to 566. The number killed during a corresponding period last year was 442.

Traffic officials, anticipating crowded highways as families go to the roads for vacations and visits with relatives, have issued a special appeal to motorists to exercise every precaution when driving during the holiday period.

For statistical purposes, the holiday begins at 6 p.m. Friday and ends at midnight Tuesday, Christmas Day. During a recent 110-hour period, to be used for comparison to the holiday death toll, five persons were killed.

The two persons killed Thursday were Edward Tracy, 21, of Pasadena, and Mrs. Mary M. Pittman, 37, of Suitland.

Tracy was killed when his car collided with another on Mountain Road near Glen Burnie. The driver of the other car, Garvy Naple, 38, suffered minor injuries, police said.

Mrs. Pittman, who was divorced and the mother of four children, was fatally injured when her car went off a road near her home, ran down a 10-foot bank and overturned.

Discontinuing Turbines

BALTIMORE (AP) — Hyman A. Pressman, attorney and public affairs watchdog, said Thursday he would not run for mayor because he could do more for the city in his present capacity.

"I would rather be an idealistic civic watchdog than to throw away my scruples and be elected mayor," said Pressman in a statement.

He also said he was "practical enough and realistic enough to realize that in the present situation, I could not win the election."

BALTIMORE (AP) — U.S. marshals maintained a constant guard Tursday on a Teamsters Union official who found a stick of dynamite wired to the starter of his car.

BETHESDA, Md. (AP) — Funeral services will be held Friday for Frank D. Christmas, 40, prominent Maryland horse trainer. Christmas, of Poolesville, was killed Tuesday night in a traffic accident near Winchester, Va.

BALTIMORE (AP) — A 26-year-old night club dancer and another woman were sentenced Thursday to three months each in the Institute for Women after conviction on charges of beating the dancer's 5-year-old daughter.

Police said the child, Karen Gromberg, had multiple bruises on her arms, legs and buttocks. Sentenced were Theresa Travis, the dancer and child's mother, and Miss Marlon Elsie Hess, 27.

Miss Hess testified that she beat the child with a plastic belt. The dancer said she had given Miss Hess general authority to spank the child, although she was not at home when the child was beaten last Friday.

ELKTON, Md. (AP) — A Cecil County legislator says it could cost $44 million to stop the growth of water milfoil, an Asian weed, in the upper Chesapeake Bay.

Dick Powell Is Reported "Very Sick"

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Actor-producer Dick Powell is "a very sick man," his physician says, and is suffering severe pain in his lower back, apparently from a new attack from cancer.

"We can't find it by X-ray," Dr. John C. Sharpe said Tuesday. "But it has to be more than just a (muscular) spasm."

Powell, 57, is under almost continuous sedation, the doctor said. He was hospitalized Nov. 27 for treatment of what was then believed to be a muscle spasm resulting from a cold.

"We were very suspicious (that this was another malignancy)," Dr. Sharpe said. "We kept it from him for a while, but Dick, who is a sensible man, knows pretty well what's wrong.

"He is a very sick man and is just not himself (but) he is not a terminal case. It takes a lot of knock out a big man like that."

Cobalt treatments have practically cleared up cancer in Powell's lymph glands and upper right chest cavity, where it was first discovered, the physician said. Powell revealed in October that he had cancer. Shortly afterward he moved from president to chairman of the board of Four Star Television, and recently it was announced that others would fill his acting roles on forthcoming television shows.

Powell, his wife June Allyson and their two children moved this week from their recently sold Beverly Hills house to a Wilshire Boulevard apartment.

East-West Trade

The Spandauer Volksblatt said the credit would be repaid by deliveries of various exports over a five-year period.

Great Dane Guards Body Of Mistress

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)— A 150-pound Great Dane stood guard over the body of its mistress in the backyard of the woman's home for about an hour here Wednesday before police were able to lure the dog away with hamburger.

Officials said the dog and the body of Mrs. Agnes Roberts attracted the attention of neighbors who called police. The dog had pawed up leaves and grass to partially cover the woman's body.

Cause of death was not immediately determined, but authorities said the one-room apartment where the woman lived alone was filled with gas fumes.

India Holds 2,000 Chinese Prisoners

NEW DELHI (UPI) — India announced Wednesday it had interned 2,000 Chinese "and other subversives" but denied as "false and malicious" reports by the Chinese Communists the internees were maltreated. Those held include women and children.

Peking Tuesday accused India of "cruel persecution" of Chinese Nationals, said it was lodging the most serious protest and announced it was sending a repatriation ships to India to bring them home.

An Indian government spokesman said some of the Chinese internees had engaged in subversion in areas bordering Tibet and the Northeast Frontier Agency (NEFA) area during the Chinese offensive.

The subversives and others were interned at Deoli City in Rajasthan state, a desert area southwest of New Delhi.

Last Survivor Of Historic Feud Dies

GILBERT, W. Va. (UPI)—The last known survivor of the historic Hatfield - McCoy feud will be laid to rest today in the same general area where he took part in several bloody encounters.

Charley Harrison, 96, died Tuesday at the home of a son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Kelly Hatfield, on Browning Fork, about four miles south of here.

The Rev. J. C. Bragg Jr., will conduct the services at the Browning Fork Church. Burial will be in the Bragg Cemetery at Hampden.

The elderly Harrison reportedly took an active part in the local family war, which lasted for three - quarters of a century on the West Virginia-Kentucky border.

It was said he led several of the raids on the McCoys and was credited with leading his Hatfield relatives to safety once following a gun fight.

Harrison was a distant relative of the Hatfield leader, Capt. Anderson (Devil Anse) Hatfield, who died in 1921 at the age of 82. Harrison became closely allied to the Hatfields after marrying the former Anna Hatfield, a cousin to Devil Anse.

New Plastic Firm To Locate In W. Va.

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—Gov. W. W. Barron announced this week that a new plastic firm which will employ up to 500 persons will begin operations at Eleanor, Putnam County, early next year.

Barron said Birmingham Plastics of West Virginia Inc. will occupy a building vacated in 1956 by Exquisite Brassier Co.

The governor said the firm will start off with 94 persons on its payroll and expand to where it will employ 500 persons in a three-year period.

State Commerce Commissioner Hulett C. Smith said the new plant represents an investment of more than $2.5 million. Smith said financing was obtained through through the State Industrial Development Authority, the Area Redevelopment Administration and the Putnam County Development Association.

The plant, which has its home offices in Michigan, will produce plastic parts for the automotive, aircraft and appliance industries. Company officials said they will use more than 1 million pounds of plastics a month in producing the parts.

Space Agency Cancels Plans To Launch Lunar Probe To Photograph Moon

By VERN HAUGLAND

WASHINGTON (AP) — The space agency canceled plans Thursday to launch a new camera-equipped Ranger rocket scheduled to take close-in television pictures of the moon before crashing into the lunar surface.

Instead, Ranger VI, which would have been launched early next year, will be replaced with a design review and test program for the entire Ranger series.

Dr. Homer Newell, director of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Office of Space Sciences, said improvements resulting from the tests will be incorporated in Rangers VII through IX.

The decision to take another look at the trouble-plagued Ranger program was based on recommendations by an inquiry board appointed by Newell last Oct. 29, after the failure of Ranger V.

The board, headed by Dr. Albert J. Kelley, director of electronics and control in NASA's Office of Advanced Research and Technology, submitted its final report Dec. 4.

The 730-pound Ranger craft was developed by the Jet Propulsion Laboratory of the California Institute of Technology.

Rangers I and II, launched in August and November 1961, functioned well but went into low earth, instead of deep space orbits, because of defective operation of the Atlas-Agena launch vehicles.

Rangers III, IV and V were designed to hit the moon and to take television pictures of it during the last parts of the flights. Ranger III launched last January sun because of excess velocity at launch.

Ranger IV hit the back side of the moon last April, but sent back no data.

Ranger V, launched Oct. 18, had a malfunctioning power system and missed the moon by 300 miles.

The basic purpose of the Ranger and allied surveyor programs is to gather lunar data in preparation for the Apollo spacecraft manned landings on the moon planned for the latter part of this decade.

NASA did not indicate the changes that might be made, or how much the delays might add to the program's cost.

In the fiscal year ending last June 30 the Ranger program received $34 million out of a total space exploration budget of $103.9 million. The project also hared in lunar planetary exploration budgets totaling $48 million and $77 million for the two preceding fiscal years.

Joao Goulart Tells Of Talk With Atty.-Gen.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) —President Joao Goulart was quoted yesterday as saying he felt his private talk with Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy removed "all the negative impressions he —Kennedy—had formed about Brazil."

Goulart and Kennedy talked privately for more than three hours Monday at the president's Alvorada Palace in Brasilia.

In an exclusive interview published Wednesday by the newspaper Jornal do Brasil, Goulart was quoted as saying: "We talked a little about everything, always without hiding our thinking or weighing our words. The Alliance for Progress, the Cuban crisis, the situation of Latin America were the themes debated, among others."

Goulart said there was no secret agreement between him and President Kennedy's brother.

In Buenos Aires, Edwin M. Martin, assistant secretary of state for inter-American affairs, said President Kennedy definitely will visit Brazil early next year. The President's trip has been postponed twice.

Kennedy flew to Brasilia at Goulart's invitation following a whirlwind inspection tour of U.S. installations in the Panama Canal Zone on Sunday.

Unusual Requests Noted In Letters To Santa

BALTIMORE (AP) — One Baltimore youth carefully prepared his letter to Santa Claus asking for a barracuda (man eating fish) for Christmas. Another little boy wants a real space ship.

These are among the requests contained in some 1,000 letters to Santa which have accumulated at the Baltimore Post Office.

The letters wind up at the desk of Mrs. Iona C. Miller, a claims clerk. She said youngsters often show great ingenuity in preparing their letters.

One arrived at the Baltimore Post Office addressed to the "North Pole, Alaska, America, Zone Cold." Many, however, are addressed simply to "Santa Claus."

One postman found a red beanbag in a mailbox. Written across the face in blue ink were these words: "Give this to Santa Claus."

Some children use trading stamps given by merchants and some draw stamps on the envelopes. Most are addressed by the youngsters in big printed letters or an unreadable scrawl.

Mrs. Miller said there are not as many letters to Santa this year as in previous years.

Many of the letters contain candy, bubble gum and other gifts to Santa. "That's why we must open them," Mrs. Miller said. "We have to know what is in them."

Here are some typical comments from the letters:

"Dear Santa, I have been a little bad. I will try to make it up before Christmas."

"Dear Santa, I love you. Do you love me? Yes or no. I been good, how are you? I know you are good."

"Christmas is a very nice thing, and I think we are to give and care."

"You can bring me anything you want, O.K.?"

And there was one little girl who exercised her feminine prerogative: "I changed my mind, and want a dress-up kit and a punch ball."

Kennedy Has Promised No More Than Sympathy To Those Working For Release Of Pig Bay Prisoners

By STANLEY MEISLER

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy has promised no more than sympathy to those bargaining for the release of 1,113 Bay of Pigs prisoners, but the evidence is clear that he has given more.

Official statements in Washington maintain that the committee now negotiating with Fidel Castro in Cuba for the release of the prisoners is a private one, supported by private funds.

But the prisoners, if they are released, will owe their freedom in large measure to the U.S. government. Reports are that Castro, in exchange for $62 million worth of drugs and food, may be willing to send the prisoners to the United States, possibly by Christmas.

It is doubtful that the private committee could complete a deal of such magnitude without the active support of the Kennedy administration.

There have been some reports, denied by the administration, that the President's brother, Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, has directed the government maneuvering in support of the committee and its attorney, James B. Donovan.

Lincoln White, state department press officer, declined comment when asked about it.

"Federal agencies are facilitating or helping in any way they can because of the sympathetic feeling of this government in the release of these prisoners," White only said.

That recalled a remark of President Kennedy at his news conference Dec. 12. "This is being done by the private committee," he said then, "and I am very sympathetic to their efforts."

A check of the record shows two threads running through the government's attitude since the prisoners were captured by Castro in April 1961:

1. A feeling of responsibility by Kennedy and his administration toward the Cuban refugees who, while trained and led by U.S. officers, tried and failed to invade Cuba and topple the Castro regime.

2. A sensitivity by Kennedy and his administration to criticism, particularly from Congress, of any hint that the U.S. government is paying ransom to Castro for the prisoners.

Ann Landers . . .

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: People seem to enjoy airing their gripes in your column. Even if it never gets into the paper it makes a person feel good to get it out of his system. Here is mine:

My next door neighbor always has to have a fancy name for her everyday ailments. She never has a common cold, like other people, it's got to be an infected sinus or a virus. Her headaches are migranes and a cough is a bronchial infection. My kids get pink-eye, but not hers. They are conjunctivitis. Of course she couldn't possibly have a toothache like anyone else. It must be something with complications—such as an abscessed or impacted tooth.

Last night we were together at a social gathering. This woman got stiff and fell down a few stairs leading to the dining room. "Inner ear trouble" she called it. Why is she like this?

—RANKLED

Dear Rankled: The poor thing must glamorize her ailments in an effort to elevate herself above the common herd. Such a person is to be pitied even though she is indeed a cervicodynia, which is a medical term for pain in the neck.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a young mother with a big problem. My husband and I have been happily married for seven years. We have an adorable little five-year-old girl.

I've been wanting another baby for three years but my husband's stock answer is, "One is enough." I argued and argued but it did no good. Well, now it has happened, and I am pregnant.

I thought he would change his mind and be happy once a baby was on the way, but I was wrong. He is furious with me and refuses to speak unless it is absolutely essential. When people offer congratulations he makes ugly remarks and I could die from embarrassment.

I can't figure out why he is so upset, Ann. He thinks the world of our little girl. Please tell me what to do. I've tried everything without success.

—IDES OF MARCH

Dear Ides: Stop trying to placate the clod. Of course his behavior is unspeakable, but he isn't thinking straight these days and buttering him up won't help.

The responsibility of another child may be frightening to him and he is reacting badly. After the baby arrives he will probably be the proudest pa on the block.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a sophomore in high school and sinking fast. I got a strong B average the first period. The second period will be a different story. My grades have been slipping and I'll be lucky to get a C average.

The trouble is at home. Every time I start to do homework the TV goes on, the washing machine starts, my kid brothers fight, the dog barks and we get company.

It's impossible to get into the college I want without topnotch grades. I'm trying to build a good record now so I won't be crying the blues later. But how can I, with all these distractions at home?

When I complain my dad tells me I should do my homework right after school instead of waiting till after supper. I can't, because there are so many activities after school and I hate to miss them. Please tell me what to do.

—LIVING IN A FISHBOWL

Dear Living: You can't ask your folks to get rid of the TV and washing machine, kick out your brothers, shoot the dog and bar company from your home. Surely there is ONE room where you can go and close the door.

If not, then stay at school and do your homework in the library. Yes, and pass up the activities.

Are your parents too strict? You can benefit from the experiences of thousands of teenagers if you write for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "How To Live With Your Parents," enclosing with your request 20c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Donations To Free Cubans Tax Exempt

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Internal Revenue Service said Wednesday that U.S. firms donating drugs and other materials to ransom Cuban prisoners are eligible for tax deductions "under the regular tax law."

A spokesman said no special tax deduction has been authorized for the contributions the value of which is estimated up to $62,000,000.

But he said both the Red Cross and the Cuban families' committee for the liberation of prisoners of war are listed as tax exempt organizations, donations to which can be deducted under limitations set up by tax laws.

European Countires Get Ready For Christmas

PARIS (UPI) — France's Christmas this year will be just a little more like that of the United States and Britain. The shops were decorated with the Christmas motif a little earlier this year and there will be a few more Christmas trees and lights in evidence.

It's not so long ago that Christmas trees were practically unheard of in France.

As a predominantly Catholic country, France observes Christmas as a religious feast rather than a time for joyous celebration.

The normal routine is to take a light refreshment Christmas Eve, go to midnight Mass and then celebrate with a traditional massive meal starting with oysters, going through turkey or goose and chestnut sauce and "boudin blanc" — white sausage — and the "Christmas log," a cake made in the form of a Yule log.

FRANKFURT (UPI) — Hanging of a Christmas calendar on Dec. 1 in windows opened the Christmas season for German children.

Every morning one more window or door in the painted house in the calendar is cut open. The openings are underlaid with transparent colored paper or hide small pieces of candy.

On each of the four Sundays before Christmas Advent Sundays one more candle is lighted on an Advent wreath. In southern Germany on the first or second Sunday of Advent 12 bellringers, wrapped in straw, tour the villages. They ring their bells and say prayers to drive away evil spirits and later collect gifts for themselves and village children.

Christmas Eve usually is spent trimming the Christmas tree.

Gifts are placed beneath the tree and will stay on display until the tree is taken down.

MADRID (UPI) — Midnight Mass following a lavish turkey dinner are the Christmas highlights for most Spaniards who traditionally wait until January for exchanging gifts.

For Spain, a deeply religious country, the exchange of presents comes on Jan. 6, the day the Three Kings gave their offerings to the new-born Christ.

But Spaniards make sure of getting their share of good food and drink on Christmas Eve and the following day. The traditional dinner at this time is made up of sea foods, cauliflower and fried turkey. About an hour after the feat the people are generally in church at Mass. And after Mass the drinking starts. Good Spanish so-called Champagne is the main drink, but is often taken along with cognac, anisette, cherry brandy and just about anything else around.

BRUSSELS (UPI) — Belgian children will not find any gifts when they awake on Christmas.

The gift-giving day was St. Nicholas' Day, Dec. 6, when children woke to discover presents and sweets.

But the habit of exchanging gifts on Christmas Eve has increased since the war and customs now are similar to those observed in most countries.

Giant decorated trees are planted in town squares and churches stage Nativity plays, families hold large dinners on Christmas Eve, but chicken rather than turkey is the most popular dish.

VIENNA (UPI)—Christmas in Austria is a family affair celebrated on Christmas Eve.

The children receive presents, not from Santa Claus or St. Nikolaus, who comes to them on Dec 16 filling their shoes with nuts, candy and fruit, but from the "Christkindl" or Christ Child.

The children are sent to their room about 7 p.m. Christmas Eve and told to stay there until father rings the Christmas bell, usually made of tinkly glass.

Rushing into the living room, the children see the gayly decorated tree for the first time.

After the traditional Christmas dinner, which, in Catholic Austria, consists of a fish main course with various side dishes.

They everybody goes to midnight Mass.

Christmas Day is highlighted by a large goose dinner for the immediate family and other relatives who come visiting.

HELSINKI (UPI) — A few weeks before Christmas, the Finnish postal department begins acting Santa Claus.

Children in a number of countries, firmly convinced that the old gent lives in Finnish Lapland, send their request letters to this country. The post office either answers the letters itself, or passes them on to some group that will.

For the Finns themselves, Christmas means the Christmas ham, eaten on Christmas Eve, the Christmas Sauna, a visit to the cemetery to pay respects to the family dead, and trees decorated with live candles instead of electric light strings.

Buys Iron Works

CARLSTADT, N.J. (UPI) — Quaker City Industries Thursday announced the acquisition of Hyde Park Iron Works of Kearney, N.J. Hyde Park manufacturers designs and sells a full line of mechanical automobile jacks and metal products. The present Hyde Park management will be retained.

To Build Trainers

[illegible]OWN, N.Y. (UPI) — General Precision, Inc.'s Link Division announced the receipt of a $2 million Air Force contract for 15 T26 flight trainers. General Precision is the principal operating subsidiary of General Precision Equipment Corp.

Bing Crosby Lists 10 Favorite American Christmas Stories Of The 20th Century

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bing Crosby, a singing man for the millions, also is an earnest reader. And since his lilting intonation of the best loved carols has become even gone to the trouble of composing singing on radio and record his bookshelves, a list of his own 10 favorite 20th Century American Christmas tales.

about the Christmas season. Crosby, preparing to star in his eighth annual "Christmas Sing" with Network on Christmas Eve, has for his own pleasure. With Bing" on the CBS Radio America's most familiar Christ- mas singing on radio and record player, he wishes his listeners would also take time to enjoy some modern American writing. Crosby is especially emphatic about 20th Century American writing because he believes modern writers, despite their fascination with man's baser self, have never lost their ability to think well of mankind while writing about Christmas.

"The list could be extended tenfold," Crosby said. "And I don't mean that my favorites are necessarily better than anyone else's. I do think however, my suggestions are enough to remind people that there is music in the written word as well as in the vinyl disc and transistor.

"It's also kind of interesting that many of these stories did not appear for the first time between hard covers as part of a book. Appropriately, they had humbler origins, in magazines and newspaper columns. I'm asking listeners to sing along with me at their radios when they hear my Christmas Eve broadcast, but I'd be doubly pleased if the old time practice of reading a Christmas story aloud in the family circle were to show some signs of coming back, too."

Here is Crosby's list of his 10 favorite Christmas stories:

"The Shepherd" and "Inasmuch," both by Heywood Broun.

"A Certain Star," by Pearl Buck.

"A Christmas Memory," by Truman Capote.

"When Father Christmas Was Young," by Coningsby Dawson.

"A Little Rain," by Brendan Gill.

SHAPE Commander Will Retire

PARIS (UPI) — Gen. Lauris Norstad will retire as supreme commander, Allied Powers Europe (SHAPE), and from the U. S. Air Force on Jan. 2 his office announced.

His office announced at the same time that Norstad would be replaced as SHAPE commander by Gen. Lyman Lemnitzer, who arrived here to take over the job last fall but delayed assuming the new post because of the Cuban crisis.

Lemnitzer is serving in the interim as commander of all American armed forces in Europe.

Norstad Wednesday paid a farewell call on French Premier Georges Pompidou, with whom he spoke for about half an hour.

Thursday, Norstad was decorated with the French Legion of Honor in the Court of the In-valides, and dined at the Elysee Palace with President Charles de Gaulle.

1909 Holiday Celebration On Texas Ranch Recalled

DALHART, Tex. (UPI) — The XIT Ranch of Texas — 3 million acres and 150,000 cattle — was the biggest ranch under fence in the world. Christmas on the XIT was like the ranch —big.

The XIT is gone now, broken up into hundreds of small ranches and farms. But Christmas on the XIT is still a vivid memory to Mrs. R. L. Duke, 86, of Dalhart.

Her husband was general manager of the XIT from 1909-1912 and she has written a book about the ranch: "Six Thousand Miles of Fence — Life on the XIT Ranch of Texas."

Mrs. Duke kept a diary about the XIT Christmas celebration in 1909. That was the year that Mr. and Mrs. Walter Farwell of the Chicago family that owned the ranch brought in a young English Lord as guest.

English Candle Eater

The visiting nobility got drunk with Fred, the cook, and ate the candles from the Christmas tree. This was almost a tragedy because the Farwells did not approve of any drink stronger than coffee.

The penalty for drinking among the cowboys was abolition of the elaborate but sober dances the Farwells sponsored. The cowboys liked the dances so much that they set up a committee to enforce the no drinking rule.

The only thing that prevented a general crackdown in 1909 was the fact that the rumpots were the guest of honor and the cook. Cooks were hard to get.

The Christmas dance in 1909 at the XIT was held in the new bunkhouse to the music of an imported band. The guests ate a midnight supper of baked hams, tiffkeys, beef, pieces, cakes, salads, celery and olives served buffet style in the ranch house dining room.

It took a barrel of apples to make the apple pies. The guests were XIT cowboys and the people of Channinf, Tex., where headquarters of the ranch was located.

Ends In Slumber

The dance lasted from 8 p.m. until dawn. By 10 a.m. Christmas, the guests were all gone and nearly everybody on the ranch was asleep.

This did not include Walter Farwell, who wandered from his house to the home of the Dukes to tell them about the English lord and the cook.

There were not to be many more Christmases for the XIT. The terrible winter of 1911-1912 froze so many cattle that old timers said a man could walk across the ranch on the carcasses and never set foot on the ground.

The Farwells could not withstand the financial blow. They leased out parts of the XIT. Then they began to sell parcels of land and soon the XIT was gone.

Men Waste Money Buying Women Gifts

NEW YORK (UPI) — Men waste a lot of money when buying gifts for the opposite sex.

That's what the fair ones themselves say, according to a recent survey in which women said men rely more on their buying power than their brain power when selecting presents.

Of 1,178 women responding to the survey conducted by Schick Incorporated, manufacturer of electrical shavers, 63 per cent said they prefer inexpensive, intimate gifts, chosen with care to reflect their own personalities and tastes.

Yet, only 40 per cent of the 1,125 men questioned reported they gave such personal gifts, thinking it safer to choose practical items for the home.

The study further showed that of the men who select household gifts, more than half give appliances, while only 17.2 per cent choose less expensive kitchenware. And when they are not wrapping dishwashers or electric frying pans with pink ribbon, about a quarter of the men avoid the necessity for choice altogether by giving cash gifts.

On this point masculine and feminine ideas on presents are sharply divided. Not one of the women questioned expressed a desire for cash in lieu of a personally selected gift. Even the 36.5 per cent who wanted household gifts expected them to be chosen with care. High on their list of most-wanted presents were decorative pieces of furniture, chinaware, and time-saving small appliances. When asked whether they would give a ladies' electric shaver to the woman in their lives, only a quarter of the men answered affirmatively. Most of the others replied women don't like to receive such personal gifts from men. But three quarters of the women questioned disagreed.

More than half the men participating said they usually have to guess at what types of presents women want. Only 34.7 per cent said they are able to discover, either by asking outright or being alert to hints, the gift preferences of their wives or girl friends. One solution for women who seldom get the gifts they want, the survey indicated, is to pass their preferences along to a mutual friend.

Call Illegal Strike

LIMA, Peru (AP)—The government has declared the work stoppage at the U.S.-owned Cerro de Pasco mines illegal and warned 12,000 strikers to return within 48 hours or face loss of their jobs.

The strike was called when the workers rejected an 8 per cent wage increase set by a government board and demanded a 20 per cent pay raise.

West Virginia Spared Raids

PARKERSBURG, W. Va. (UPI) — West Virginia was spared in mass pinball machine raids carried out across the nation Wednesday by the Internal Revenue Service.

Charles Maerker, chief of the IRS intelligence division in West Virginia, said the raids did not involve any West Virginia city.

Maerker said IRS personnel from West Virginia joined agents from other states in seizing coin-operated pinball machines in key cities across the country.

The IRS office in Washington said the agents acted under a new law that classified coin-operated pinball machines as gambling devices.

A spokesman for the IRS in Washington said the raids involved major cities in virtually every state.

Radiation Control Rules Proposed By Health Unit

A draft of proposed regulations for the control and registration of sources of ionizing radiation in Maryland is available for review and comment by interested people, according to Dr. Perry F. Prather, State Health Commissioner.

The radiation protection regulations pertain to such sources of radiation as medical, dental, and industrial X-ray machines, electron microscopes and other X-ray producing devices and radium. They have been approved by the Radiation Control Advisory Board created by legislative action in 1960 for the purpose of advising the State Board of Health and Mental Hygiene on matters related to radiation.

Copies of the proposed regulations have been mailed to hospitals, local health departments, and organizations representing the medical, dental, chiropractic, and osteopathic professions. Comments are requested before January 1 so they may be considered prior to final action by the State Board of Health and Mental Hygiene.

All correspondence, comments, or requests for additional copies should be addressed to the Radiation Protection Section of the State Department of Health located at 301 West Preston Street in Baltimore.

While constructive uses of ionizing radiation are to be encouraged, it is essential to limit unnecessary exposure in every way possible, the health commissioner said.

Revenue Agent Lack Limited Pinball Raids

All Counties Might Have Been Covered

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service said Thursday possibly all of Maryland's 23 counties would have been included in its crackdown on illegally operated pinball machines if it had had enough agents to do the job.

A spokesman said that only 40 agents were available to stage raids Wednesday when the IRS hit and seized 34 pinball machines in 25 business establishments which had not obtained the required $250 stamp for gambling machines.

The agency had expected to seize machines in 41 places, but no violations were discovered in 16 businesses checked Wednesday.

The spokesman explained that through misspellings and other clerical errors, Treasury records showed some machines to be without the gambling stamps. But the on-the-spot check, he said, showed them legally registered in 16 businesses.

Cecil County was hardest hit. Sixteen machines were seized in 12 locations. The agents got six machines at four places in Baltimore County, five machines in four locations in Wicomico and five in three places in Hartford.

In both Washington and Worcester counties, raids were staged at one establishment. One machine was confiscated in each county.

The confiscated machines were brought to Baltimore for storage in a government owned garage, pending administrative action. A 24-hour guard was maintained at the building.

State Workers

Thursday he has filed a request with the Budget Bureau to include a $3.1 million pay raise for about 10,000 of the state's 23,000 employes.

The state Standard Salary Board will meet next month to act on Davis' proposal.

If the board approves the $3.1 million hike, the salary increase will be included in Gov. Tawes' budget for the 1964 fiscal year, beginning next July 1.

Gov. Tawes has adopted a program of granting salary increases to selected state employes rather than making blanket raises as the MCEA is proposing.

Davis, in recommending the selected $3.1 million pay hike, said the increases are based on a comparison of salaries in similar jobs outside the state government.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Whoa! Stop Racing, Start Pacing

Slow down! There's still a few days to go, even if your calendar of festivities carries over to Twelfth Night. Take time out today and every day ahead for a brief investment in beauty insurance—a nap.

If you throw up your hands and claim that you "simply can't find the time" for a daily rest period, you're doing too much, racing instead of pacing yourself. And you can be sure that the ravages are starting to show. If you haven't noticed them, it's probably because you "simply can't find the time" to look at the mirror-image of your tired eyes and pale complexion, or to listen for the ragged edge of temper that is sharpening your tone of voice.

Be sure of one thing. Others are noticing.

So, be ruthless if you must, and cut away a slice of each day's busy schedule, to make room for rest. There must be at least one activity that is expendable right now . . . one chore that can be postponed, perhaps even one social gathering that can be skipped in favor of a quiet, restorative early-to-bed evening at home.

It's better to make this kind of sacrifice than to sacrifice your good looks and good health and the good times you could be having if you weren't so bogged down with fatigue.

If all you can bear to spare are a couple of ten minute intervals a day, this will help. Make the most of them. Muffle the phone and the doorbell, take a short soak in a warm tub, then, while you're still relaxed, stretch out on your bed or couch for a real catnap.

Go all the way. Darken the room, slather your face with cream, cover your eyes with pads soaked in soothing lotion, prop up your legs—and, most significant of all, forget the clock and that calendar. Before you ever wind up the one or get wound up in the other, be certain that you know how to unwind, whenever you sense your nerves tightening.

A lot of wise New Year resolutions can spring from the booklet I call "Summerizing Your Beauty." Send for a copy today, study the suggestions is offers, and set up your own program for self-improvement in the months ahead.

By writing to me, John Robert Powers, c/o this newspaper, enclosing 10c and a stamped, self-addressed envelope, a copy of "Summerizing your Beauty" will be delivered to you within two weeks.

Washington Man Seeking Freedom In Court Action

One of three men sentenced to long prison terms in Garrett County Circuit Court in 1957 as the result of the robbery of a Friendsville store of $13,000 in cash and $25,000 in Series E Savings Bonds has filed a petition for a hearing under the Post Conviction Act.

Chief Judge Morgan C. Harris has set January 11 at 10:30 a. m. as the date to hear the petition in Oakland and has appointed Lewis Jones, Oakland, as the attorney for the petitioner, Earl R. Franklin, of Washington, D. C.

The prisoner is seeking his freedom on the contention he was not properly represented by counsel and his conviction was based on corroborated testimony of two other men charged in the robbery.

Franklin was one of the trio which included Oliver Rockett, of Baltimore, and Edward Kisner, a native of Garrett County who had been residing in Baltimore for some time prior to the robbery of the Arnold Fox store in Friendsville in July of 1957. All three received 10-year prison terms and Franklin an extra two years for jail break.

The theft of the money and bonds was discovered on Monday, July 30, 1957 by Fox when he opened the store for business.

The trio fled Garrett County with their loot and went to Washington. The Savings Bonds were burned and only $6,900 of the cash was recovered after the men were arrested. Rockett entered a guilty plea on September 6, 1957.

The late Associate Judge Neil C. Fraley heard the case in Garrett County Circuit Court and the present Associate Judge Stuart Hamill assisted the state's attorney of the county in prosecuting the case. This disqualifies him from hearing Franklin's plea.

| Pass | 4 ♡ | Pass | Pass |

Opening lead: Ace of ◇

Overconfidence frequently lays the basis for an unexpected setback as West discovered to his great discomfiture in today's hand.

West had the classic requirements for his opening no trump bid. East escaped to the safer position of two diamonds, however, even before his partner was doubled. South's two heart overcall was a calculated risk, but North's leap to game in that suit strikes us as a bit impulsive. With all the missing high card strength marked behind the declarer, a raise to three hearts would give partner some leeway while inviting him to carry on. West's double of the game contract was not entirely discreet and served to provide South with additional clews in the play.

West opened the ace of diamonds and, when the dummy showed up without a high honor in hearts, it appeared that he held two sure trump tricks. Secure in this conviction, West played the ace and a small club and then sat back to await the setting tricks.

In the dummy at trick three with the king of clubs, South promptly cashed the queen in order to discard a spade from his hand. Next came the ace and another spade which was ruffed as the inauguration of a trump reducing campaign. The king of diamonds was trumped in dummy, so that the declarer could ruff a second spade.

By criscrossing once more in diamonds and spades, South brought himself down to the ace-queen-eight of hearts while his opponent was left with the king-jack-nine. A small trump put West in and forced him to surrender the last two tricks to declarer's major tenace.

It should have been apparent to West, after his opening lead, that South had no way to dispose of a club loser from his hand. It was not necessary, therefore, to surrender control of the hand by cashing the ace of clubs so abruptly. If West merely exits with a small diamond, it will serve to deprive declarer of a vital entry required to reduce himself to the necessary three card end position in trumps.

Auto Output Slowing

The blistering pace of U.S. auto production will be slowed this week with assemblies scheduled to drop 6.4 per cent from last week but up 10.3 per cent from the year-ago figure. Last week's output of 176,019 units was the highest for any week in seven years. Output next week is expected to decline sharply as a result of the Christmas holiday.

New Orleans Takes Pride In Unique Yuletide

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Most of the things that happen in New Orleans at Christmastime are the things that happen all over the country. But New Orleans prides herself on uniqueness, and that spirit is especially evident during the Yuletide.

As one might expect, the French influence is most responsible for this. The kids believe in Santa Claus, but their grandparents would rather they believed in "Papa Noel." One might hail a friend on the street with a "Merry Christmas" and be answered with, "Merci, Joyeux Noel."

New Orleans will not have a White Christmas. In fact, if it snowed at all this winter, the people would be talking about it for years.

But it will undoubtedly be cold and the people will get into the spirit of the season with as much gusto as their neighbors to the North.

The religious aspects of the season are observed with a fervor found in very few places. In this center of Catholicism, Midnight Mass on Christmas Eve is celebrated in almost all the city's Catholic churches.

The focal point is historic St. Louis Cathedral, in the heart of the city's French Quarter, where a solemn high mass is celebrated at midnight by the Archbishop of New Orleans.

But even at the peak of the Christmas season, when in most areas the people are buckling down for the anticlimatical dead of winter, New Orleanians are just beginning a holiday season that will carry over into February or March.

The Sugar Bowl season is a matter of hours away when the Christmas dishes are put back in the china closet, and the Carnival season, with the elaborate balls and parades — when New Orleans is at her carefree best —is already filling the mind of socialite and street cleaner.

In short, Christmas comes to New Orleans only once a year—as it does everywhere else — but in the "City that Care Forgot," it is only the beginning.

Federal Justice Becomes Faster

Under a little publicized law enacted two months ago, citizens with claims against the federal government are provided swifter redress. Justice will be less expensive, too, because claimants in civil actions are now, for the first time, permitted to sue on home ground.

Heretofore, suits could be brought only in the Federal District Court in Washington on the theory that an action against any federal agency involves its head as an indispensable party to the suit. The old venue law not only jammed the District of Columbia's court but discouraged many plaintiffs from pressing their claims because the expense of transporting themselves, witnesses and evidence to Washington was prohibitive.

Under the new law, citizens may sue the government in 94 judicial districts in all the states, Puerto Rico, the Canal Zone, the Virgin Islands and Guam. All federal district courts now have original jurisdiction and the aggrieved citizen has four choices: To sue where he lives, where the defendant lives, where the property involved is located, or where the action was caused.

The old law was a relic of the early days of the nation when the few federal employes all lived in or close to the capital.

By Ralph de Toledano

Unless there is a last-minute Administration change of heart, two battles will explode on Capitol Hill when Congress convenes. In both cases, the command post will be at the White House, but the battling will be done on the floor and in the cloakrooms of the House of Representatives.

Battle One will be over the House Ways and Means Committee, Chairman Wilbur Mills's concrete bunker. The White House has decided that unless this powerful tax-writing committee is enlarged, allowing the Administration to pack it with faithful New Frontiersmen, legislation to slash taxes will never reach the floor. Mr. Mills has openly expressed his opposition to tax reduction without a commensurate cut in government spending. He will therefore make sure that very careful study is made of White House proposals—and if they are not to his liking, a tax reform bill will languish and die in committee.

The House Democratic leadership has warned the President that any attempt to pack the Ways and Means Committee will cause an uproar, that it is virtually impossible to muster the necessary votes for any such radical departure, that the mere suggestion will consolidate anti-Administration forces. The net result, therefore, will be to begin the new session with a thumping Kennedy defeat.

Battle Two will be over the House Rules Committee which decides when and in what order legislation reaches the floor. Two years ago, the newly elected President demanded that the Rules Committee be increased in size so as to break the grip of Chairman Howard Smith of Virginia and a Republican-Southern Democratic coalition. The change in House rules was ratified only after a bitter battle and with the help of 21 Republicans.

The theory behind this Republican support, enunciated by Representative Thomas Curtis of Missouri, was simply that if the packing plan were defeated, the President would have a convenient excuse for any failure of his legislative program. GOP House leader Charles Halleck never quite forgave Mr. Curtis for destroying the unified Republican front. In the past weeks, Mr. Halleck has been quietly and carefully lining up votes against a re-packing of the House Rules Committee.

Many Democrats would like to leave matters as they are. Without Administration initiative, the committee will revert automatically to its pre-packing size. But the Democratic Study Group, made up of some 100 liberal Congressmen, has made a "firm decision" to re-fight the 1961 battle. Since the vote then was 217-to-212, increased Republican strength and the probable defection of many of those in the GOP who sided with the Democrats makes passage seem a touch-and-go proposition.

The indications are that no matter how Representative Curtis may vote, he will not do the necessary log-rolling among his colleagues to hold the former pro-packing Republicans in line. To assume leadership of the mavericks would bring him little gain and jeopardize future relations with the GOP leadership.

Those within the Democratic Study Group who call for a no-holds-barred fight have been warned, moreover, that possibilities of success were sharply diminished when Speaker Sam Rayburn died. Mr. Rayburn delivered a packed Rules Committee to the White House only by using every ounce of his prestige among Northern liberals and Southern conservatives. He bullied, cajoled and called into play his vast knowledge of Congressional maneuvering.

Speaker John McCormack has never fully won the confidence of his Democratic colleagues in the House. Southerners who would take direction from Mr. Rayburn are far more independent in their relations with Mr. McCormack.

Veterans of Capitol Hill politics have urged the White House to remain silent on the Rules Committee packing plan until they have thoroughly counted every Democratic nose and won cast-iron commitments from enough Congressmen to guarantee success. It would be better to accept the old 12-man size committee than to engage in a foredoomed conflict. After all, they argue, the 15-man committee failed to perform as the President had hoped. To stir Congressional tempers at the outset isn't worth it.

Skybolt Reveals Deterioriation In West Alliance

By Joseph Alsop

PARIS

The success in Cuba, the bitter dissensions in the Communist camp, and other hopeful developments are making too many people forget the debit side of the ledger. In brief, the Western Alliance is in a shocking mess.

The Skybolt affair provides a useful measuring stick for the deterioriation which has occurred. Here is a vastly expensive, probably unreliable weapon, concerning which the American government made commitment to the British government when the weapon was still expected to be reliable and inexpensive.

In the old days, when unsuccessful tests began to raise doubts about Skybolt, there would have been no question about what to do. High American officials would have passed the news to their British opposite numbers, saying in effect: "The dam thing looks like a lemon. We know this puts you in a hole. How can we help?"

The British, by the same token, would have faced the facts, however unpalatable. And they would have uncomplainingly joined the Americans in a search for a practical alternative. But contrast this way of handling such problems ten years ago with the way the problem has actually been handled.

To begin with, the problem was even more political than technical because of its easily foreseeable reprecussions in British domestic politics. The responsibility, therefore, belonged just as much to the State Department as to the Defense Department. But if the State Department was brought into the picture, the results were nil; for the American government's management of the Skybolt affair actually maximized the political ill effects in Britain.

It is not possible to be much more complimentary about the British response to the bad news about Skybolt. While insisting on their right to an "independent" deterrent, the British for a while also insisted that the American taxpayer had a duty to pay for essential parts of this supposedly "independent" deterrent. We were disloyal, they said, because we objected to throwing good money after bad.

The current outcry in London about American beastliness is not just a proof of the grave deterioratoin of the old easiness and truth between allies. It is also, unhappily, a symptom of the neuroses that have been temporarily generated by the changes in Britain's situation so pointedly, perhaps unkindly, but not untruthfully, summarized by Dean G. Acheson. There is no neurosis in France, however, and here the symptoms of deterioration are almost more striking.

The plan of the French nuclear deterrent depends exclusively on the effectiveness of the late-model Mirage bomber. In order to reach to their targets, the Mirage bombers will rely entirely upon their power to make hedge-hopping attacks at supersonic speeds. Informed Frenchmen still apparently believe that the Soviets have no anti-air defense capable of stopping this type of attack.

In reality, the American government has had undeniable proof for over a year that the Soviets possess an anti-aircraft missile, the Sam III, specifically, designed to intercept low flying bombers like the French Mirages. These missiles are being installed in enormous numbers in the Soviet Union. Thus the new French bomber is already obsolete, even before it has come into service.

What must this mean? One cannot suppose that Gen. de Gaulle and his government mean to spend billions of francs on a weapon known to be ineffectual. Hence one is driven to conclude either that the American government has failed to pass on the needed warning to the French government, or that the French government has treated the warning as coming from a suspect and hostile source. Either way, the proof of the breakdown of inter-Aliled confidence is only too clear.

The recent NATO meeting, despite its surface cordiality born of the Cuban success, showed the same unhealthy symptoms. What Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara said to the NATO allies about the need for more conventional forces in Western Europe was only too lamentably, demonstrably true.

Yet McNamara's presentation was coldly received as an unwelcome lecture. And several of those at the council table all but cheered when British Defense Minister Peter Thorneycroft replied with the dubious doctrine that a nation's duty to defend itself must be subordinated to its fiscal problems.

The symptoms of ill-health are unmistakable, in short. The disease will not be cured until the Kennedy administration sorts out the existing miscellany of prejudices and postures, and thus arrives at a unitary European policy with clear priorities and clear relations between the whole and all its parts.

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

INDIAN GIVER — The federal government has a long memory, but not even the agency involved in the following thought it was that long!

In 1860, 103 years ago, St. Elizabeth's Hospital, a mental institution in Washington, accepted some benches from the House of Representatives, which was undergoing remodeling. As most things of this sort are, the benches were turned over "on loan," with the stipulation that they were subject to re-possession by the House on demand.

St. Elizabeth's forgot about the loan a long, long time ago, but it recently received a request from the Capitol architect's office for return of the benches for use in some restoration work that is now going on there.

Records and photographs show that St. Elizabeth's received at least 16 of the benches — upholstered, with arms and supports of decorated cast iron and backs and frames of American oak — were taken from the Capitol and installed in a former chapel at the institution.

So far, St. Elizabeth's has located five of the benches, but none of them are of the length desired by the architect's office. Similar benches were loaned to the U. S. Court of Claims, and have been returned.

There is great fear at the Capitol and St. Elizabeth's that the missing benches will remain missing forevermore. They were probably heaved out onto the city dump years ago when the chapel was abandoned.

Which should give both government branches a new thought to live by — neither a borrower nor a lender be!

No Tears Shed Over Cancellation Of Skybolt Contract With Douglas

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — It may not help Prime Minister Macmillan with his domestic political problems, but there's a certain poetic justice in the fact that President Kennedy is canceling the Skybolt missile contract with Douglas Aircraft.

For what Macmillan doesn't know is that time after time Douglas has come under fire for exorbitant profits on missile contracts, for collaborating wtih the Defense Department in putting out advertising to boost a bigger defense budget, and finally for selling the blueprints of the DC-4 to Japan before Pearl Harbor.

President Kennedy, therefore, is shedding no tears over Douglas protests that it is losing the $2,300,000,000 Skybolt contract. Douglas's track record of denials and lobbying pressure also brings no tears to anyone reviewing the record.

When this column reported that Douglas sold the DC-4 blueprints to Japan for $706,720 in 1939, Donald Douglas Sr., issued a ringing denial. Under no circumstances, he said, would Douglas sell blueprints to Japan.

But after the war, Japanese documents were seized, confirming the deal. One letter, Aug. 14, 1939, from A. Akabana to Maj. V. E. Bertrandias of Douglas, was especially interesting.

"Looking over the Saturday edition of the New York Times," the Japanese official wrote, "I could not help but write this letter to compliment you for the most excellent way of disclosing the sales. Those 'in the know' will not object to the transaction as they are limited to those in our trade, while the laymen don't know what the ship is anyway when mentioned singly by your designation in the paper. . . . . It was an excellent way of handling the difficult matter in a delicate situation, and I wish to share the feeling of relief, if you ever had one."

Colonel Nickerson's Expose

Douglas was also the focal point of the furor stirred up by Col. John Nickerson of Redstone Arsenal, when he blamed the U.S. missile lag on wire-pulling by certain big manufacturers and claimed they were undercutting efficient army production.

"It should be noted that the aircraft industry and particularly the Douglas Aircraft Company openly oppose the development of any missile by a government agency," Nickerson charged.

It was the Army's Jupiter, built at Redstone, which finally launched the first American satellite. However, Nickerson's warning has come true. The big missile contracts for the Skybolt, et al, have gone to Douglas and other aircraft manufacturers, sometimes at exorbitant costs.

These costs were highlighted by Sen. John McClellan's investigating committee last spring when he showed how Douglas had rolled up a profit of 44.3 per cent on contracts to build missile launcher-loaders, even though it farmed much of the work out to other companies.

Western Electric, in turn, took a heavy "mark-up profit" on work which had been farmed out to other plants. Western is a subsidiary of American Tel and Tel, the company which Kennedy recommended should dominate the new communications satellite.

Defense Advertising And Politics

Douglas has been using an advertising campaign to keep the Skybolt contract from being canceled, and it's suspected that it even had something to do with stirring up British political repercussions in England.

Just how these advertising campaigns operate was disclosed during the defense lobbying hearings held by Rep. Edward Hebert, D.-La.

"We discuss with Army public relations officers our advertising program every year," Donald Douglas Jr., confessed to Hebert without batting an eye. "It's part of our partnership with the Armed Forces. Our habit is to submit to the Armed Forces a plan of what we propose in advertising and get their suggestions."

President Kennedy, in his TV report to the nation, referred to Douglas's advertising campaign against cancellation of the Skybolt; so it might be interesting for Representative Hebert to hold another probe to ascertain whether Douglas's current advertising was also concurred in by the Armed Forces.

Despite the track record of high profits and wire-pulling, the admirals and generals continue to favor Douglas. On the day after Kennedy gave his TV report to the nation, Sen. Clair Engle of California proudly announced that the Navy had awarded a $15,400,000 contract to Douglas for long lead items for Skyhawk aircraft.

And since the McClellan committee exposed Douglas's excessive profits on April 3 of this year, the Air Force has actually signed 19 contracts with Douglas totaling $82,609,000; while the Navy awarded Douglas six contracts totaling $14,200,000.

So, despite the finger of Congress pointing at excess profits, the Armed Forces blithely continue dishing out contracts to their old friends — the big defense contractors.

Missile-Go-Round

Prime Minister Macmillan's problem with cancellation of the Skybolt is because he was under heavy fire for surrendering Britain's own "Blue Streak" nuclear deterrent. He did this on the understanding that it would be replaced by the Skybolt. . . . . Real reason why Kennedy is canceling the Skybolt is not its failures but because he is diligently and definitely seeking a tax cut. The only way he can cut taxes is to cut the budget and the only place where the budget can be cut is military spending. . . . . Though the Skybolt has had some experimental failures, the fact is that every new missile scores initial failures. Douglas did an excellent job in the end on the Thor, the most accurate of our long-range missiles. . . . . Secretary of Defense McNamara, with his slide-rule brain, has calculated that with the Minute Man missile we can get more bang for the buck; so, with economy necessary, the Skybolt has to go. . . . . Kennedy is offering the British instead a medium-range mobile missile which can be transported around the British Isles by truck.

Documentary Films

By John Crosby

PARIS

I have had a talk with Erwin Leiser, an idealist who makes money. Leiser is the man who produced "Mein Kampf," the documentary on Hitler which I thought wouldn't draw 12 people to the box office and which was a gigantic box office hit. (Shows how much I know about this crazy business).

Leiser's second film was a documentary on Eichmann, another grim one, and he's currently working on the third of a trilogy called "Choose Life!" which is about the perils and hope of the atomic age, which is not exactly escapist entertainment either.

I can understand these films being done; I can't understand their popularity and neither can Leiser. "Mein Kampf," he told me, was an immense box office hit in 95 countries. I asked him if he were surprised by this.

"Very much," he said. "I didn't think it would be a success. Even in the United States I didn't expect it. In America the very word documentary is box office poison. No one wants to see them. But I thing people are interested in people, and will come to see things put in human terms. I have a feeling that today the picture industry is changing. Pictures are getting so expensive. Producers try to be sensational or spectacular or both. "The exact opposite is just to show the truth—on all levels, the high level and the low level."

I told him that I had heard something similar from a publisher of children's books who told me: "Children want books to be as true as possible. Fiction is quite out of fashion with French children. A few years ago, children wanted to read fiction about people landing on the moon. Now they want the truth about people landing on the moon. Fiction went out of fashion very quietly and very quickly."

Leiser's film about the atom has the rather sticky title, "Choose Life!" which Leiser took —the exclamation point is his own —from Deuteronomy, chapter 30, verse 19: "I have set before you life and death, blessing and cursing; therefore choose life that both thou and thy seed may live."

"I didn't know anything about Hiroshima when I went there," Leiser told me. "I went to find out—from people in hospitals, in homes, in the streets. I had all the case histories in my hands. I'm not making a political film. I want to show what it means to survive an atom bomb. How do you life afterwards? We always say, if a bomb is dropped on the United States or Russia, how many people will be killed? But what happens to people who survive? Are they different?"

That's what Leiser went to Hiroshima to find out and that's what is in his film. "I arrived alone in Hiroshima. I declared that I wanted to wait and learn, as I could not know right from the start what Hiroshima had to tell. This statement brought me the confidence of the victims, and this confidence was deepened through the following episode: In one of the homes I met a man disabled by the atom bomb, who, after a long illness, was being dismissed as healed. On the following day, I met him again in the waiting room of the atom hospital. Of course, I greeted him. However, people like himself are not used to being greeted. This quite normal salutation and the fact that it came from a foreigner became very soon the talk of the disabled persons and the doors of their homes and working places, the sick room at the atom hospital, and the barracks of the poorest of the poor were opened to me. Everyone of these people in this film agreed to being shot with the proud awareness of being united with a world that had shut him out, a world to which he could convey an important message. Without this cooperation it would have been impossible to show the true Hiroshima.

"The film starts in Mexico where our pictures show an untouched, idyllic world with the natural relation of man towards life and death. It then turns toward the world of anonymous death and anonymous life, the world in which the atom bomb was born. The film demonstrates how the atom bomb, instead of terminating the war, introduced the cold war, and how the bombs grew bigger and the threat grows steadily.

"As a contrast to the world of the victims and the reality of the menaced, the film shows the life of the unsuspecting and unconcerned, from the night life and bars and strip teases in Hiroshima to the well-known ingredients of our own pleasures. The simultaneousness of the contracts gives the film its dimensions."

Medical Problems Peculiar To Winter Season

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Weather affects health and most northerners have learned that the cold months bring their challenges. There are more accidents because of fewer hours of daylight and more hazardous roads and sidewalks. In addition, we must face the medical problems peculiar to winter.

The human body seems to change with the seasons and diseases common in summer are likely to disappear when autumn sets in and winter is not far off. Polio is replaced by influenza. Other disorders, such as heart disease, begin to mount. Winter also brings man-made hazards associated with overcrowding and air pollution.

Numerous infections spread by direct contact under crowded conditions. Respiratory infections are easily passed along in buses and subways. The same applies to homes and apartments where the occupants are packed in like sardines.

Air pollution irritates the membranes, making them more susceptible to bacterial invasion. Chemical contaminants, fumes, and gases also aggravate existing diseases, especially in the elderly. This is the price we pay for progress.

Some of the perils of winter cannot be overcome but many can be minimized or eliminated. Everyone with a respiratory infection should follow the golden rule and do everything possible to avoid spreading the disease to others. Teach the children to do the same because they are more susceptible to colds and usually bring them home.

Maintain a high resistance to infection by eating properly, practicing cleanliness, obtaining ample sleep, and avoiding excesses. Flu shots help prevent influenza and prompt treatment of a cold not only lessens the chance of complications but hastens recovery.

HOLE IN EARDRUM

J. L. writes: What's the difference between a punctured and a perforated eardrum?

REPLY

None — they both mean a hole in the structure. The purist might argue that perforation means a row of holes, as in a sheet of postage stamps, but medically speaking, there is no difference.

DON'T BLAME FATE

J. S. writes: Is there any truth in the statement that if you were meant to be heavy, you will be heavy?

REPLY

This is a good alibi but who decides whether a person is meant to be stout? The tall man with a big frame may be heavy but is not necessarily obese, as weight stems from muscle mass rather than from fat. On the other hand, there are stout individuals who feel better when overweight and who live a normal life expectancy. Obesity runs in some families but there is a question whether the condition is hereditary or whether love for food is catching.

A LIFELONG PROCESS

E. L. D. writes: Do the arteries of the heart, brain, and kidneys harden for a long time before they break?

REPLY

It has been said that the arteries begin to harden as soon as we are born. Evidence of this condition has been found in young men killed on the battlefield or in highway accidents. Ordinarily, arteriosclerosis may exist for years before causing trouble.

DISTURBED ABSORPTION

P. S. writes: My 2½-year-old daughter has loose stools and a rash at times. The diagnosis is starch intolerance. Can you tell me something about this condition and whether it will be outgrown?

REPLY

I assume you refer to celiac disease, in which carbohydrates and other food elements are not absorbed properly in the small intestine. Eliminating the gluten factor in wheat is the recommended treatment and symptoms usually disappear in late childhood or adolescence.

TOMORROW: Chest cartilage injuries.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of diseases will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

In Kansas, they seem to relish the story of a small town wife who accompanied her husband to Topeka for a cattlemen's convention. She wore a home-made blouse of which she was inordinately proud, for on it she had embroidered every cattle brand she knew.

A veteran cattleman watched her with something akin to awe as she approached the registration desk. Then he cackled loudly to a friend, "Get a load of that critter, Tom! She's sure changed hands a lot, hasn't she?"

A politician named T. Fenning Dodsworth once was foolhardy enough to pick a fight with London's brilliant critic and essayist, Sir Max Beerbohm. Sir Max destroyed him with a piece that concluded, "Mr. Dodsworth now has stood for Parliament in every sort of constituency, but fortunately, for everybody but himself, escaped, every time, the evil of election."

Later this same Dodsworth wrote a series of articles for a London weekly. The relentless Beerbohm commented, "Its circulation is plummeting by leaps and bounds."

Tony Randall tells about a teacher in Las Vegas who informed an 8-year-old student, "I gave you 100 this week in arithmetic, my boy." "Great," enthused the student. "And what do you say we let it all ride on the next test?"

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD — Even if it means giving up Christmas with his friends, Ross Hunter is packed and ready to leave for London at a moment's notice—all because of a certain lady—Hayley Mills.

So eager is producer Hunter to make sure there are no slip-ups in getting Hayley for his "The Chalk Garden" he's taking the contract himself. Ross simply won't make this movie for Universal without Hayley and shelved it last year when she was unavailable.

Hunter is also taking along another contract for John Mills, Hayley's father, who is now set to play the role of the butler which won Fritz Weaver the Donaldson Award when he played it on Broadway.

Tammy Grimes, for whom I've always had a weakness since I saw her in "The Unsinkable Molly Brown" is the girl Noel Coward and Harry Kurnitz have in mind for the Marilyn Monroe role in their stage musical version of "The Prince and the Show Girl." Noel let this slip when he flew from Switzerland to Paris to talk to Walter Matthau, who currently is playing one of the leads in "Charades."

Noel discussed with Walter the possibility of playing the Laurence Olivier role in the show. Coward is writing the music and lyrics, and Kurnitz is doing the book for the Broadway presentation scheduled in the spring. It should be very good—probably better than the movie.

Although most of Charles Laughton's friends were prepared when news came that he had passed on, one is never prepared for the loss of a friend. The last time I saw Charlie was at the sneak preview of "Advise and Consent." He played the Southern senator and was very pleased with his role.

"I'll meet you after the showing," he said, "so you can tell me what you think of the picture. I saw it this afternoon, and am looking forward to seeing it again. I also want to tell Hank Fonda how good he is."

Charles' role in "Advise and Consent" wasn't his best, but he was very amusing. It didn't compare with his Captain Bligh from "Mutiny on the Bounty") or his "Ruggles of Red Gap."

Didn't I tell you that funny-girl Carol Burnett is heading into a big 1963? Hal Wallis has been talking to Carol about taking over the role Shirley MacLaine walked out of in "First Wife" when Shirley filed her contract suit against Hal. "First Wife" was ready to go after the first of the year with Van Johnson in the male lead—and if Wallis can get a replacement for Shirley the comedy won't be delayed.

Jim Garner may soon be joined in the entertainment business by his older brother, Jack, who is a golf pro in Norman, Okla. He also happens to be a good singer.

The owner of a small recording company persuaded Jack to wax a number, and Jack sent a copy of the platter to Jim. Now Jim is playing it for visitors to the set of "The Thrill of it All", and those who have heard Jack's vocal performance are urging Jim to play it for some of his disc jockey friends to give his brother a local airing.

Magazine Story Of "Ole Miss" Riot Termed Accurate

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Justice Department spokesman says a magazine account of the rioting at Oxford, Miss., over Negro James H. Meredith is accurate.

Edwin O. Guthman, special assistant for public information, gave that official reply when asked about a detailed retelling of the Oxford story in the current Look magazine. He declined any further comment.

Look said Mississippi Gov. Ross R. Barnett was dealing secretly with Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy for four days before the riot.

The main point of the Look article is contained in this paragraph: "What the segregationists did not know is this: While Barnett was encouraging their efforts, he was—throughout the four days before the riot—secretly suggesting schemes to Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy that would allow Negro James H. Meredith to enter Ole Miss."

1962 W. Va. Political Picture Is Reviewed

Editor's note: This is the second of five dispatches reviewing the year in West Virginia. The stories will summarize the Top Ten events of 1962, the year in government and politics, business and industry, the lighter side of the news, and sports.

By CARLO J. SALZANO

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—Gov. W. W. Barron's continued victories in the Legislature and a general election which wrote an end to the long political career of veteran Democratic congressman Cleveland M. Bailey highlighted West Virginia government and politics during 1962.

The end of Bailey's 16 years in the House of Representatives began nearly two years ago when the 1961 Legislature, the same one which gave the then-newly-elected governor a running start in his four-year term, realigned the congressional districts from six to five to conform with a drop in population.

The realignment threw Bailey, now 76, into an elimination battle with 1st District Rep. Arch A. Moore Jr., a tireless campaigner and 37 years Bailey's junior.

West Virginia Democrats were optimistic to the end but 1st District voters dropped the curtain on Bailey last Nov. 6 and handed Moore his fourth two-year term by a wide margin.

The off-year election saw the Democrats take the other four congressional districts but lose six seats in the House of Delegates and two in the Senate. The new lineup at the end of the year was 76-24 in the House and 23-9 in the Senate, with Democrats still in control of both.

The 30-day budget session at the start of 1962 showed that Barron had not lost any of his influence after 14 months in office.

The even-year session followed in the footsteps of the previous meeting by going along with Barron's "call" on practically everything from granting condemnation rights to coal pipeline builders to passing a tax extension package including extension of the consumer sales tax at the 3 per cent level for another year.

Among others in a long list of items sought by Barron—and approved by the 1962 Legislature—were an experimental vocational training program for high school dropouts, a new Emergency Employment Program and a coal research bureau at West Virginia University.

As 1962 drew to a close, it appeared that the extra penny placed on the 2 per cent sales tax might lose the "temporary" tag put on it in 1960.

Morgantown attorney Julius W. Singleton Jr., renominated by Democratic lawmakers Dec. 10 for another term as House speaker, said he believed the Legislature would extend the levy in order to finance federally-supported public works programs for the unemployed.

Whether the 1963 Legislature will be as receptive to the governor's proposals now that Barron starts the latter half of his four-year term remained to be seen. Some lawmakers were betting the sales tax would not be extended at the higher rate without some changes, such as exempting groceries and prescription medicine.

Barron, like governors before him, was plagued at the start of his term with extensive unemployment, particularly in the southern coal fields where machines continued to replace thousands of miners.

But the unemployment curve slid downward this year, and with the help of state and federal public works programs, joblessness was cut from about 84,200 at the start of the year to about 55,000 toward the end of 1962.

Barron, taking advantage of the multi-million Public Works Acceleration Program enacted by Congress, placed the major burden of seeing that the state got its share of the money on Paul Crabtree of Charleston. Crabtree, first assigned as a liaison man between the state capitol and West Virginia's congressional delegation, was brought from Washington to Charleston to direct West Virginia's participation in the federal job-making program.

The Barron administration calendar during the year included some major changes in department heads, forced on Barron as a result of unforeseen events.

Fred Caplan, who went on in November to win election to the State Supreme Court was shifted from the state attorney general's office where he was an assistant to the Public Service Commission and then to the high court, replacing the late Judge Leslie E. Given.

The move from the PSC left a vacancy filled by Mrs. Virginia Mae Brown who was succeeded as state insurance commissioner by Harlan Justice.

The death this year of State Mental Health Director Charles A. Zeller left another vacancy which Barron filled with Dr. Mildred M. Bateman as acting director.

Fire Auxiliary Holds Election

FROSTBURG — Mrs. Mildred Landefeld was re-elected president of the Auxiliary to the Shaft Fire Company for her third term a recent evening.

Mrs. Della Wade will serve as vice-president; Kathleen Wilson, secretary, and Muriel McNeil, treasurer.

Mrs. Wade will also serve as chaplain and Nellie Allen, Gertrude Carder and Kathleen Wilson are trustees.

Following the business session, a jingle party was held. Gifts were distributed by Lorna Frost acting as Santa.

Refreshments were served at a table decorated in the holiday motif, which was in charge of Nellie Allen and Della Wade.

The next meeting will be held January 8.

Post Office Plans Sunday Hours

MOOREFIELD — Postmaster Glenn Evans announces that Moorefield Post Office will be open Sunday afternoon between noon and 2 p.m. Only packages will be delivered and distributed. No stamps or other services will be sold.

Evans said that the total cancellations so far this year totaled 32,401 compared with 25,395 last year, up to December 17.

For December, Evans reported a total of 9,785 cancellations to Monday, compared with a total of 8,540 last year.

He emphasized the count includes only the mail going through the electric cancelling machine and did not include packages or hand stamped mail.

Keyser Council Hears Plans For Centennial

KEYSER — Joseph Stanislawczyk, program chairman for next year's centennial observance in Mineral County, appeared before City Council this week and discussed progression of plans to the present time.

Stanislawczyk said Mineral County's share of funds needed to carry out the observance has been established by the state committee at $11,177, representing 50 cents for every person, based on the 1960 census.

He requested financial aid from the city and explained he will appear before four councils in the county in the near future to make this same request. Keyser, for instance, has a share of $5,500.

Stanislawczyk explained he has been meeting with various groups throughout the city and plans to meet with others in the near future. He pointed out that any organization or group desiring to hear about plans being made to contact him and he will see they get the information, either from him or some other person working with the centennial observance.

Plans are being made to honor the first baby born in the county and old folks. Stanislawczyk obtained approval of council to hold a tag day in an effort to raise some of the necessary funds.

Stanislawczyk explained that he has pledged himself to seeing that an outstanding program is arranged for the county next year. The program will be tied in with the Cumberland Valley Volunteer Firemen's Association convention to be hosted by the Keyser Fire Department next August.

Council approved a request by National Bank of Keyser to remove a parking meter on Center Street next to Main Street at the corner of the bank. The institution made the request in the hope better facilities would be provided for night depository customers desiring to use that facility on Center Street. The city will paint a yellow line at the area and the space is to be used for a temporary stop only.

Church Organ Purchased By Presbyterians

BARTON — The First Presbyterian Church has purchased a new $2,400 organ, said Rev. George Roberts, pastor.

Delivery of the organ has been delayed, according to the pastor, who said several members of the congregation are taking lessons to play it.

Robert Inskeep is chairman of the committee making arrangements to pay for the organ. He is being assisted by Mrs. Laura Kyle, treasurer.

Rev. Mr. Roberts is asking those who send checks or cash to mark "organ fund" on the envelope.

Report On Jobs Discouraging

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—West Virginia received a discouraging job report Thursday from the State Department of Employment Security.

The department said employment dropped more than 5 to 527,300 between October and November and more than 19 per cent below levels for the same period last year.

In addition, the department said, unemployment was up, also by 5 per cent to 61,800 over October figures while it dropped 4 per cent below records set November, 1961.

Unemployment was listed at 10.5 per cent of the labor force during November.

The unemployment drop during the 12-month period coincided with a 23 per cent cut in the state's total labor force, reported at 589,100 last month and at 612,400 in November, 1961.

Keyser Jaycees To Hold Yule Lighting Event

KEYSER—Sunday is the deadline for local residents to enter the Christmas home lighting contest sponsored by the Keyser Jaycees.

Larry Swartzmiller, chairman, urged persons decorating their homes to submit an entry form as soon as possible. Prizes of $30, $20 and $10 will be awarded.

Swartzmiller pointed out that prizes will not be given on the amount of lighting, but rather on the basis of artistic merit, originality, lighting technique and ingenuity.

Persons entering the contest must reside within the city limits. Jaycee members and 1961 winners are not eligible to compete.

Judging will take place next Wednesday, Thursday and Friday from 6:30 to 11 p. m.

Deer Slayer Reward Started

Indignation at the killing of 'Jasper', the pet deer in Constitution Park has resulted in several moves by organizations and individuals to raise funds for a reward for the arrest of the slayer.

Graydon 'Swede' Dunlap, who has been a deputy game warden during the deer hunting season for about 15 years, said he will personally offer $50 for information leading to the arrest of the culprits.

Officers and members of the Cumberland Outdoor Club are raising funds from donations by club members to offer as a reward for the arrest of the deer slayer.

'Jasper' had been an attraction at the park for 14 years and was almost 15 years old when he was killed by a bow and arrow at his pen sometime last weekend.

Home-Bound Serviceman Victimized Arriving Here

Mark Haselberger knew the trip from Italy would be expensive, but he was anxious to be with his family in LaVale for the holidays.

The trip, however, turned out to be more costly than anticipated, not because of travel fares, but because $65 — all the money he had after making the trip — was removed from a wallet he lost only minutes away from home.

Haselberger, whose parents live on Gramlich Road in LaVale, and who is stationed with the Air Force in Bindisi, Italy, alighted from the train at Queen City Station here on the last leg of his long trip.

He went into a phone booth at the passenger depot to arrange transportation to LaVale and took his wallet from his pocket. That was the last time he saw it and the $65 it contained — all that was left from the amount he saved to come home.

An unidentified woman, a day later, phoned the Haselberger home in LaVale, and said she found the wallet, but she informed them that it was devoid of any money.

The wallet was returned in the mail, but airman Haselberger is without the money he hoped to use for Christmas and to "tide" him over until January 12 when he must return to Italy.

Program Slated

A Christmas program will be presented Sunday at 7:30 p. m. at the Church of the Nazarene in Wiley Ford, according to Rev. A. L. Lepley, pastor.

Others taking part will be Mrs. Russell Bittner, Mrs. George DeVore, Mrs. Glenn Mechem, Mrs. Chester Payne, Miss Janie Runion, Mrs. Fern Wilson, Mrs. Harry Kesecker, Mrs. James W. Stevens, Mrs. James Straw, Robert Keefe, and Hugh Stride.

Boat Builders Merging Like Auto Makers

By JACK WOLISTON

In its infancy, the automobile industry was made up of a large number of manufacturers. Dozens have since disappeared, gobbled up by larger manufacturers or victims of financial reverses.

Now many economic experts believe the pleasure boat-building industry, which began mushrooming after World War II, may be in for the same thing.

Already there have been a number of consolidations and several large corporations, not connected with the industry but seeking diversification of funds, have bought into the industry. Many builders have gone out of business, mostly due to the slump that hit the industry in 1960 and 1961.

One of the most recent mergers to be announced was that of Century Boat company and Cruis Along Boats, Inc., a subsdidiary of the Overlakes Corporation. The single operation will be known as The Century Boat Company.

The company's newly organized Cruiser Division, incidentally, will offer seven mahogany planked models for 1963 ranging in size froma 26-foot family cruiser to a 45-foot luxury motor yacht. The Runabout & Skiff Division will offer 11 models ranging in size from 15-feet to 26-feet.

If you are planning on buying a used outboard motor of ruse next season, this is s good time of year—as far as price is concerned—to pick one up. Buying pre-owned equipment from a reputable dealer is probably the best bet, but plenty of private parties have motors for sale.

In buying a used motor, you might check these points:

COMPRESSION — Grasp the starter rope and pull the motor over, checking the "pull" and "bounce" as the motor turns over.

CRANKCASE BUSHING—Check for excessive dirty oil accumulations on the armature plate. They indicate faulty upper bearing assembly.

CYLINDER CONDITION — Remove sparkplugs and, using a pencil flashlight, peer into the cylinder head. Check for excessive carbon accumulation which will ultimately effect the perfor-

PROPELLER BUSHING — Expert up-and-down pressure on the propeller shaft and look for seepage around the shaft seal. Excessive up-and-down play or seepage indicates a worn bushing.

Check wiring for cracks in insulation, abrasions and breaks: also check fuel connections and the gasoline line for leaks.

To Orbit Satellite

PARIS (UPI)—The first space satellite to be launched by a French rocket is expected to be placed into orbit in 1965, Minister of State Gaston Palewski said Thursday.

N. C. Outer Bankers Have Two Christmases

By ALFRED MCCORMACK, JR.

RODANTHE, Hatteras Island, N.C., (UPI) —A tradition brought from England with the first colonists is still a way of life on North Carolina's Outer Banks.

There are few who enjoy a happier Yuletide than do the weather-wise folk who live here in Rodanthe, the village on this fabled isle when Christmas twice is observed. The Outer Bankers celebrate Christmas on Dec. 25 along with everybody else.

They also have a second celebration January 6, even larger and livelier than the first. Known as Old Christmas, it is a survival of a tradition which began hundreds of years ago when people refused to accept the edict setting the calendar observance of Christmas ahead 12 days.

Old Christmas is known sometimes as Little Christmas, Epiphany or Twelfth Night — a celebration that takes place on the 12th day after December 25.

While the celebration is centered at the villages of Rodanthe and nearby Waves, actually the whole island is concerned with the tradition.

Celebrate Old Way

The Hatteras Islanders are direct descendants of America's early English settlers. Largely untouched by many aspects of contemporary life, they still speak in a peculiar Old English twang. Commercialism is lacking to any large extent for Old Christmas.

The celebration begins before dawn on the morning of January 6 with eerie fife and drum music filling the saltt-inged air as a band of roving amateur musicians winds its way about the village. They go from house to house until all villagers have been visited and piped awake by the strange serenade.

Every villager who is able joins in the procession, along with numerous visitors from the mainland who annually come to take part in the ancient ceremonies.

Feasting And Fellowship

By noon the procession reaches a central point where a table of monstrous proportions is spread with all the fixings of Christmas.

Communion, prayer, fellowship and feasting prevail, with the coming of dusk, a Mardi Gras-type celebration gets under way.

The islanders parade in gaily-colored costumes. Wearing mummers' masks, they join a meandering, shadowy procession which winds its way across the sandy dunes and grass patches.

The highlight is the arrival of Old Buck — two men dressed as a steer with a pair of horns protruding forth and a cow bell which clangs out a syncopated rhythm to the clapping of hands. Old Buck charges ponderously and grotesquely around in the crowd with Santa Claus on his back.

Later, the villagers gather in an old schoolhouse for singing, folk dancing and candy boiling, followed by an oyster roast on the beach.

Blanda Expected To Make Difference In AFL Title Game Sunday

Poll Of Players Favors Oilers To Win Crown

Dallas Underdog In Championship Tilt At Houston

HOUSTON (AP)—George Blanda was the big difference Thursday as players from five American Football League teams picked the Houston Oilers to defeat the Dallas Texans Sunday in the league's third championship game at Houston.

A poll of four players each from San Diego, Denver, Oakland, Boston and Buffalo gave the Oilers the nod by a margin of about 2-1.

Coach Sid Gillman, whose San Diego Chargers lost title games to Houston in 1960 and 1961, also picked the Oilers and said Blanda would be the difference.

13th Year As Pro

Blanda, the former Chicago Bear who is in his 13th year as a pro, was the AFL's Player of the Year last season. He dropped to fourth place among the league's quarterbacks this year but rallied the Oilers from behind six times to move them into their third straight title game.

Ernie Ladd, San Diego's big defensive specialist, was among those picking the Texans.

"It will be Dallas if they don't crack under the pressure of their first championship game and Houston's third," Ladd said. "Dallas has great balance but Houston has togetherness, which is terribly important in a championship game."

Oilers 'Title - Hardened'

Sid Youngelman of Buffalo said the Oilers are title-hardened.

"Dallas may give Blanda a rough afternoon but when he has to George will come up with the big play," Youngelman said.

Lionel Taylor of Denver said Houston has better balance but teammate Chuck Gavin and Bo Roberson of Oakland picked Dallas because of its defense.

BLUEBONNET BOWL: Georgia Tech vs. Missouri

TWO CLOSELY-MATCHED teams led by outstanding offensive threats, Missouri and Georgia Tech, clash in the Bluebonnet Bowl game in Houston December 22. Missouri, which was 7-1-2 for the season, is led by soph halfback Johnny Roland (top left), who scored 13 touchdowns and gained 872 yards in 159 carries. Georgia Tech, with All-American Rufus Guthrie at one of the guards, features quarterback Billy Lothridge, who piled up 89 points, had a total offense of 1,484 yards passing and rushing. (Central Press)

Bradley's Braves Defeat Gamecocks

PEORIA, Ill. (UPI) — Lavern Tart and Richard Williams combined to score 49 points Thursday night to pace Bradley to a 76-65 win over stubborn South Carolina.

Tart connected for 26 and Williams, 23.

The Braves were never able to pull away from the Gamecocks but were never behind after the eighth minute of play as they notched their sixth win in seven outings. Their largest lead was 13 points with 11 minutes left in the contest.

Scotti Ward sank 29 points to grab scoring honors for South Carolina.

Kansas City Posts 8th Straight Win

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — The Kansas City Steers stampeded the Philadelphia Tapers 99-88 Thursday night for their eighth straight win in the American Basketball League and their 16hit in the last 18 starts.

The Steers, now 20-7, are three games ahead of second place Long Beach.

High point honors for the Steers went again to Bill Bridges, with 28, only two points better than teammate Larry Staverman with 26.

Philadelphia was paced by 6-foot-7 Leroy Wright who scored 22.

Red Wings Lose

DETROIT (UPI) — Jerry Toppazzini and Charlie Burns scored late in the third period to give the victory-starved Boston Bruins a 5-3 National Hockey League triumph over the second place Detroit Red Wings Thursday night.

Toppazzini's fifth marker of the season at 14:38 of the third period broke a 3-3 tie and put the Bruins ahead to stay as the Red Wings lost a chance to move into a first place tie with the idle Chicago Black Hawks.

Canadiens, Leafs Tie

MONTREAL (UPI) — The Montreal Canadiens came from behind four times Thursday night, the last on a goal by Bernie (Boom-Boom) Geoffrion, to tie the Toronto Maple Leafs, 4-4, in a National Hockey League game.

Geoffrion, carrying the puck from his own blueline, outraced Toronto defenseman Cal Brewer with some fancy stick handling and then fooled goalie Johnny Bower from just in front of the crease at 14:15 for the evener.

NOTHING NEW

ATHENS, Greece (UPI)—More than 2,000 years ago—when the original Olympic Games were staged—the ancients argued about whether competitors were really amateurs or state-supported hirelings, just as modern nations are doing today.

Of all things. Some are now saying that the Toronto Maple Leafs hockey team should be Toronto Maple Leaves, to be grammatically correct.

No Skiing Foreseen At 3 W. Va. Slopes

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—The state Department of Commerce said Thursday indications were there would be no skiing at three of West Virginia's major slopes.

The department said if new snow fell over the Weiss Knob slope near Davis, Tucker County, during the remainder of the week there was a possibility of skiing there.

However, the department said Chestnut Ridge near Morgantown, Bald Knob near Beckley and Oglebay Park in Wheeling probably would not have enough snow to permit skiing.

Tennessee Loses First To Missouri

COLUMBIA, Mo. (UPI) — The Missouri University Tigers cashed in on last minute freethrows to slip by previously unbeaten Tennessee Thursday night, 54-47, and snap a three-game losing streak.

High scorer for the hosts was Ray Bob Carey with 15. Tennessee was led by reserve Pat Robinette with 14 points.

The victory over the Southeastern Conference Tennessee Volunteers gave Missouri a 4-4 season record. The visitors are now 5-1.

Bearcats Beat Dayton For 25th Victory In Row

Number One Quint Scores 44-37 Win

CINCINNATI (AP)—Top-ranked Cincinnati, hampered in the first half by Dayton's snug defense and slowdown tactics, spruced up their offense and methodically climbed to a 44-37 basketball victory over the Flyers Thursday night. The Bearcats' early shooting was poor and they barely eked out an 18-17 first half lead.

It was the 25th straight victory for the national champions, including seven this season.

Cincinnati moved to a quick second half lead, but with Dayton dominating the rebounds, the Bearcats offense stalled briefly.

A field goal by Bill Westerkamp cut the lead to 36-32, but Cincinnati's George Wilson blocked a field goal try, scored two baskets and the Bearcats never were in trouble thereafter.

West Virginia Meets Oregon State In Kentucky Invitational Tonight

Wildcats Face Iowa In Other Semi-Final Game

Lexington Event Expected To Set Attendance Mark

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UPI) —The 10th annual Kentucky Invitational basketball tournament will get underway here Friday night, featuring West Virginia University among three teams ranked among the top 20 in national polls.

Oregon State will meet West Virginia to kick off the two-day tournament at 7:30 p.m. Friday. That contest will be followed by Iowa against Kentucky at 9:30 p.m.

West Virginia is ranked 10th in the nation this week, Kentucky 12th and Oregon State 13th. Iowa is unranked.

Spectator-interest in the tournament was due to reach unprecedented proportions. The second night of action was a sellout several weeks ago and only a handful of tickets remained for the opening attraction. The attendance was expected to better the previous mark of 22,713 in 1959.

Nations Richest Tourney

The payoff to competing teams, which has ranged from approximately $8,200 the first year to the 1959 high of $15,420 to rank the UKIT as the nation's richest tournament, also could be a new record this year.

West Virginia will be making its fourth appearance in the tournament and will be seeking its third title. The Mountaineers sport a 3-1 record compiled on successes at the expense of The Citadel, VMI and Richmond, all in the Southern Conference, and a loss to Ohio State in Columbus.

The Mountaineers, who will go into the contest after a 10-day layoff, are pulling for a re-match with Kentucky—pitting all-America Rod Thorn against Kentucky's counterpart, Cotton Nash. In two UKIT battles, both for the championship, each picked up a title—Kentucky downing the Mountaineers 97-91 in 1958 and WVU emerging the victor in 1959, 79-70.

Nash, an All-America choice, will enter the tournament with a 21.4 scoring average, compared with Thorn's 22.7.

Kentucky Is 3-2

The Wildcats, who will defend the UKIT title they captured for a fifth time in 1961, may have to call on all of the genius of coach Adolph Rupp to gain the finals and get a shot at the title this year. UK shows only a 3-2 record after dropping a Monday night decision to powerful North Carolina, 68-66. The previous loss came in the opener with Virginia Tech, 80-77.

Iowa, first night foe of the Wildcats in only the second meeting in history, comes here with a break-even (2-2) and back on the victory trail after a Monday night decision to Clemson, 74-64.

Ga. Tech And Missouri Prepare For Bluebonnet Bowl Tomorrow

Game At Houston Brings Together Two Even Clubs

HOUSTON (UPI) — The University of Missouri and Georgia Tech football teams started their rehearsals here Thursday for the biggest college grid show of Christmas Week, the Bluebonnet Bowl.

The two squads took turn about working on the Rice University practice field in preparation for the Saturday afternoon showdown.

Yellow Jacket coach Bobby Dodd and Missouri's Dan Devine both had plenty to worry about.

The Bluebonnet will match two of the nation's top individual pointmakers. It will pit one of college football's most variable offenses against a Missouri defense that has allowed only eight touchdowns during regular season play.

Have Seven Wins

The two teams have won an equal number of victories, seven, against tough schedules.

Both have an assortment of individual standouts, but the names most frequently heard are Billy Lotheridge and Johnny Roland.

Lotheridge wrote a new record book at Georgia Tech during the past season with 89 points, 83 completions in 156 pass attempts and a total offensive record of 1,440 yards.

Dodd calls Lotheridge the finest quarterback he has ever coached.

Top Running Back

Roland returns to his home under the Missouri banner with a record as one of the finest running backs in Big Eight history as a sophmore.

The 190-pound halfback from Corpus Christi set a sophomore rushing mark of 830 yards. Twice during the season, he scored three touchdowns in a single game, and added up 78 points for the year. He led in pass receptions with six catches for 59 yards. He threw two touchdown passes himself.

Both squads were in good shape, but tech lost a No. 2 halfback Jeff Davis, in a drill Wednesday. He pulled a ligament while running a simulated Missouri pass attack, and will miss the game.

Dodd will fill the gap by moving Gerry Russell to Davis spot and keeping Doug Cooper in reserve.

Johansson Gets Tax Break From Sweden

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Ex-heavyweight champion Ingemar Johansson harassed by income tax agents in both the United States and Sweden, received a welcome Christmas message from the Swedish tax authorities Thursday: He will be taxed $70,000 less for his income tax for 1960.

Ingo's taxable incomes during the year were set at $28,000 instead of $100,000 as originally estimated by the tax authorities.

Steubenville Wins Geneva Tournament

BEAVER FALLS, Pa. (UPI) — Steubenville overcame a stubborn Youngstown squad Thursday night to record a 73-67 victory and the championship of the first annual Geneva Invitational Tournament.

Chuck Zerger and Chuck Montgomery each scored 21 points for the Barons who shot 64 per cent from the field.

Larry Seneta had 24 for the losers who now have a 4-3 record. Steubenville is 5-3 for the season.

UCLA Cops Sixth

EVANSTON, Ill. (UPI) — Fred Slaughter, a 6-foot-5 center, scored 22 points to spark a well-balanced UCLA attack as the Bruins defeated Northwestern 70-63 in an intersectional basketball game Thursday night.

The victory gave UCLA a season's mark of 6-2. It was the fourth loss in six games for Northwestern.

Berlin Trips Hornets, 64-51

Hyndman Cagers Suffer 3rd Loss

A strong second half surge last night propelled Berlin to a 64-51 victory over Hyndman and enabled the winners to avenge an earlier defeat at the hands of the Hornets.

Hyndman led at the end of the first period of the game at Berlin by a one-point 11-10 margin, but fell behind at halftime (23-18) and could never catch up. Berlin exploded for 41 points in the second half.

Dave Bridegum tossed in 22 points to spark the attack for the Berlin cagers, who also got double figure performances from Bill Zimmerman (11) and Bruce Stuck (10). Bob Fichtner and Steve Stoufffer collected 17 and 15 respectively for the Hornets.

The loss evened Hyndman's season record at 3-3. In a game at Hyndman last week, the Hornets edged Berlin by a 59-56 score.

First Team To Score Has Won 23 Of 29 NFL Playoff Games

Records Show Home Teams Won 20 Times

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — When the Green Bay Packers and the New York Giants meet Dec. 30 for the National Football League championship, records of past title games show it is 4-1 that the first team to score will win.

It happened that way 23 times in 29 games since they set up the playoff system in 1933. Green Bay in 1960 and New York in 1958 were the only recent losers who scored first.

The same records give a 20-8 edge to the home team in this series, disregarding the 1936 game between the Boston Redskins and Green Bay on a neutral field at the Polo Grounds in New York. It was played there because Boston was not drawing at home. The next season the club moved to Washington.

The first-to-score theory is particularly interesting this year because many football students believe the only way to beat the Packers is to score quickly and jolt them out of their ball-control system of grinding out first downs methodically along the ground. The basis of this theory is that the Packers' passing game, despite Bart Starr's No. 1 rating among quarterbacks, is not as effetive when Green Bay is behind.

You can be sure that the Giants, regardless of what they say, are hoping to score as quickly as they did when they rambled over the Chicago Bears 47-7 in 1956. The only recent losers among teams that scored first were the Giants in the overtime game with Baltimore in 1958 and the Packers on the slippery turf at Philadelphia in 1960.

A quick review of the Packers' 14 games this season shows that the opposition got the jump only four times. Two of them did it with field goals and lost subsequently. Another did it with a TD run and also lost.

The Giants present a sharp contrast. They have been behind in six of their 14 games before they scored although they wound up with a 12-2 record and nine straight victories.

Dynamite Murphy Scores TKO At 63

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)—Dynamite Murphy, 63, scored a smashing, one-punch TKO early Thursday.

The assailant wobbled to his feet and fled in a waiting car.

West Virginia Tech Cager Is Dismissed After Disturbance

MONTGOMERY, W. Va. (UPI) —West Virginia Tech's only starting senior, Carl Pennington, has been dismissed from Golden Bears' basketball squad "for disciplinary reasons," coach Neal Baisi announced Thursday.

Baisi said Pennington, who leads the West Virginia Conference in goal shooting with a percentage of 63.2, was dismissed after a disturbance at a local theater Wednesday night.

In seven games so far this year, Pennington scored 122 points for a 17.4 average. His high goal shooting percentage came in 55 out of 87 attempts.

Beall Defeats Fort Ashby By 53-42 Score

Beall's Mountaineers scored their third triumph in five Potomac Valley Conference starts last night by downing Fort Ashby, 53-42, at Frostburg.

Ronnie Frazier led the Mounties' scoring attack with 13 points, while Dennis Bartlett and Bob Baker collected ten apiece. Don Wagoner and Gary Mangus were high for the losing Eagles with 12 and 11 respectively.

The loss prevented the Eagles from climbing into the '500 class. They've won two games and lost four, three in conference competition.

CORE Asks Colts Not To Train At Westminster

Town's Segregated Facilities Opposed

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Congress of Racial Equality asked the Baltimore Colts Thursday not to return to Westminster, Md., for pre-season training next year because of the town's segregated facilities.

CORE told Don Kellett, executive vice president of the National Football League club, that Negro players on the team resent being confined to the training camp because of segregation policies in places of public accommodation.

The Colts have trained at the Western Maryland College campus here since the NFL franchise returned to Baltimore in 1953. CORE and other integrationist groups have conducted sit-in demonstrations here in recent months in protest to segregated eating places.

Owner Gets Letter

Kellett said a copy of the letter has been sent to Carroll Rosenbloom, owner of the Colts, and that they would sit down and discuss the problem.

"CORE people know our feelings about Westminster," Kellett said. "We would like to clear up this matter as much as they would."

Kellett said a decision to move takes time and that he thought all of the players, as well as other Colt officials, should be given a chance to express their views.

John Roemer, vice chairman of the Baltimore CORE chapter, said some eating places, the town's only movie theater and a bowling alley remain closed to Negroes.

In his letter to Kellett, Roemer said Negroes from Baltimore who want to see a Colt practice session "are deterred by the lack of eating places open to them."

Could Lose Player

In addition, he said, "Westminster can be the difference between gaining and losing a top-flight player."

He said the team should either get another training site or declare all segregated facilities in Westminster off limits to all the players.

Kellett said he talked with town officials last summer after CORE representatives had approached him on the subject.

"We talked last summer with some of the town's officials," Kellett said. "They were sympathetic butt hey didn't do anything about it."

He promised to take up the matter again with the mayor, the local restaurant association and Chamber of Commerce.

St. Louis Cardinals Took $73,000 Loss

ST. LOUIS (UPI)—Despite increased attendance at home and away during the 1962 baseball season, the St. Louis Cardinals lost $73,000, General Manager Bing Devine announced Thursday.

The Cardinals said team replacement expenses totaled $1.3 million and accounted for the overall deficit.

The club had an overall game operating profit in St. Louis of $1,217,000, a $288,000 increase over 1961, Devine said.

Home attendance was 953,895, up 98,590, from the year before and road attendance rose 246,587 to 1,242,091, the club said.

After-profit taxes of $128,000 in 1961 resulted from the sale of $525,000 worth of players to the National League's two new clubs, the Cardinals said.

Coaches, Managers Named For Pan-Am Games In Brazil

NEW YORK (AP)—Coaches and managers for the United States men's track and field team in the Pan-American Games at Sao Paulo, Brazil, April 20-May 5, 1963 were announced Thursday.

Lou Montgomery, track coach at Cornell University, was named head coach. His assistants will be Ted Haydon of the University of Chicago, and Cornelius (Dutch) Warmerdam, the famed ex-pole vault champion from Fresno State.

Ben Lewis, assistant head of the recreation and physical fitness branch, Bureau of Naval Personnel, Washington, D.C., was appointed manager. His assistants will be Ray Lumpp, athletic director of the New York A.C. and Karl Schlademann, retired track coach of Michigan State.

These appointments were made by the U.S. Olympic Men's Track and Field Committee, headed by George Eastment of Manhattan College.

The managers and coaches, together with Eastment and Harold Berliner of San Francisco, will form a selection committee to determine, with a few exceptions, the athletic personnel for the games.

In Memoriam

In memory of our baby daughter, Tina Marie Lewis who died one year ago today.

The blow was sudden, the shock severe,
To part with one we loved so dear.
Your loving heart had ceased to beat,
Your stay on earth was done.
Our hearts still ache with loneliness,
Our eyes shed many tears,
God alone knows how much we miss you,
And will through all the years.
Your departure so sudden, all were confused.
We know you are waiting on that great celestial shore.
One by one we will join you,
Until your waiting shall be no more.
It is hard to understand why things must be,
But there is a reason for it all beyond our power to see.
God gave us strength to bear it,
And courage to fight the blow,
But what it meant to lose you,
No one will ever know.

Tired Blood Pitch Termed "Quackery"

CHICAGO (UPI) — The "tired blood" sales pitch to sell non-prescription iron compounds to treat anemic conditions is out right quackery, Today's Health magazine said Thursday.

An article in the January issue of the magazine said hundreds of thousands of persons are being "deluded" into using such compounds, containing "shotgun mixtures" of vitamins and minerals, as a treatment for all sorts of anemic conditions.

The magazine said the mixtures do have ingredients, including iron, which may have therapeutic value in cases of iron deficiency anemia but the dosage contained usually is too small to be effective therapeutically.

"The chief danger of the shotgun compounds is that they pose a threat to the health, if not the very lives, of their users," the article said.

"For one thing, their use may cause people...to delay seeking treatment for their ailment. For another thing, since anemia is not a disease but a symptom... the use of the shotgun compounds may mask the real disease of the patient."

PPG Will Build Float Glass Line Here

Work On New Facility Is Slated Soon

Works 7 Addition Will Be Almost One-Third Mile Long

An added multi-million dollar facility for the manufacture of glass by a new process in this country will be erected by the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company adjacent to the company's plate glass operations here, according to R. M. Hainsfurther, Glass Division vice president.

The new facilities will be housed in a continuous process line almost a third of a mile long. It will include provisions for housing a new glass melting tank coupled with the revolutionary float process, a new annealing lehr and wareroom cutting facilities.

Present plans, Mr. Hainsfurther said, provide for construction to begin shortly after the first of the year and the first production of float process glass in the United States is scheduled for the first half of 1964.

Demand Is Up

The new facility is being built to meet increased demands for the company's high quality flat glasses.

The glass company in July purchased the license to use the new float process from Pilkington Brothers, Ltd., and recently reached an agreement with Local 180, Glass Workers Union, for the administration of the new float glass installation.

The Cumberland float glass line will be the first in the world outside of the parent operation at St. Helens, England.

The process produces a continuous finished ribbon of glass as the result of utilizing the new process for "drawing" glass from the furnace.

In a recent announcement, the company said the new production line will mean a slight increase in the number of employes but that the present service departments will remain generally at present levels.

Is Second First

The new float glass line will mark the second time that PPG, one of the largest plate glass manufacturing concerns in the world, has expressed its confidence in Cumberland as a home for industry.

Eight years ago, the company broke ground at North Branch for the world's most modern plate glass plant and in mid-1958 dedicated the unit.

The plant began operations at its works 7 plant here on September 8, 1956.

Finan Takes Oath

Attorney General Thomas B. Finan of Cumberland took the oath of office yesterday in ceremonies in the State Office Building in Baltimore. Mr. Finan, left, who served as attorney general for nearly two years after his appointment by Governor J. Millard Tawes, was elected to a full four-year term in the November 6 election. Governor Tawes is shown administering the oath as Mr. Finan's wife, Isabel, looks on.

Post Office Staff Works Way Out Of Mail Deluge

"We are getting out of the deluge," was the description yesterday of the Christmas mailing situation here.

The staff of the Cumberland post office was, at least, hoping that the worst of the Christmas rush is over, and certainly the pace in the lobby was less hurried than it was early this week.

The volume of Christmas mail, Postmaster Thomas F. Conlon reported, is slightly ahead of last year.

But he said the cost of moving the mail this year will be less than before, due to the increased use of career employes, rather than temporary workers.

During this Christmas mailing season, the post office here will have put on 63 temporary employes as compared to 110 last year.

On Tuesday, the office handled 490,000 pieces of mail of all types and brings the total volume to a bit more than last year.

Mr. Conlon said he joins all postal employes here in thanking the public for mailing early, saying it benefits both the post office staff and the public, which is sure of getting mail which is posted early.

Wilson Heads Local Chamber Of Commerce

Rocky Gap Park Report Received

William L. Wilson Jr., local attorney, yesterday was elected president of the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce.

He was elected as the newly-constituted 30-member Board of Directors held its organizational meeting in the grill room of the Fort Cumberland.

Elected vice president of the Chamber, which has about 500 members, was Walter E. Dyck, manager of Works 7 of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company plant here.

Reelected were Carl O. Belt as treasurer and Robert C. Petersen, manager.

Directors appointed C. M. Sanner, chairman, John E. Geare and George M. Young as a committee to nominate the second vice president. He will be elected at the next board meeting.

Read was a letter from R. F. Barker, vice president of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company, in response to a letter thanking the firm for its decision to build its flat glass process facilities at Works 7 here.

Mr. Barker said the chamber has made significant contributions toward the kind of community relations which are attractive to industry.

He assured the Chamber that PPG will try to continue to conduct itself as a good corporate citizen of Cumberland.

Also read was a letter from Russell H. McCain, executive assistant of Governor Tawes, acknowledging receipt of a resolution asking the creation of an adequate state park at Rocky Gap.

He said the project is included in the program of the Department of Forests and Parks, and Joseph F. Kaylor, director of the department, said it will be presented to the Master Planning Committee.

Alvin H. Wilson, chairman of the Planning committee, stressed the necessity of following up on the project.

A report on the work of the Municipal Planning and Zoning Commission was presented by Harry Kauffman, who urged the board to take an active interest in the program.

Agreement Filed

A right of way agreement between the Potomac Edison Company and Maurice A. and Christine Bennett, his wife, of Reynolds, was filed yesterday in the land records office of Allegany County Court House.

Cuba-Bound Baby Food Is Shipped

Western Maryland Moves Four Carloads

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Western Maryland Railway said Thursday it was shipping to Port Everglades, Fla., four car loads of baby food that may be shipped to Cuba.

The railway company picked up the baby food Thursday and Wednesday at a packing plant in Chambersburg, Pa., for shipment — free of charge — over its lines and connecting lines to the Florida port.

W. Arthur Grotz, president of the Western Maryland, said his company is hauling the baby food at the request of the American Red Cross.

Grotz said the baby food is part of the supplies to be loaded aboard the freighter, the African Pilot. The supplies may be exchanged for the Cuban invasion prisoners.

The African Pilot left Baltimore Harbor last weekend for Port Everglades and is docked in the Florida harbor awaiting the results of negotiations on the release of the Bay of Pigs invasion prisoners.

The body of Donald E. Rounds, 28, of RD 2, Swanton, who was the object of an intense search since his disappearance in snow-covered Garrett County two weeks ago while deer hunting was located yesterday morning in a wooded area about a half mile from Glendale Road, authorities said.

DONALD E. ROUNDS

Garrett County Sheriff James Frantz, whose office joined in the search along with National Guardsmen and others, said the man's body was found at 10:15 a. m. yesterday about 15 minutes after a party of five went into the woods to search for the missing hunter.

The victim was found by Edward Hoye of RD 2, Deer Park, who was in the party which included Robert Friend, RD 2, Swanton, forestry department employe, John Halsey, Star Route, Oakland, Terry Frazee, RD 2, Swanton and Harry Sherbondy of Mt. Pleasant, Pa.

Death From Exposure

Rounds was found lying in a small ravine which is located about a mile from his house, according to the sheriff, who said an autopsy was performed at Garrett County Memorial Hospital and death was attributed to exposure.

The victim's gun, an old Army-style 306 rifle, was found empty about 30 feet away from the man's body. After the victim was located, Sheriff Frantz and Dr. James H. Feaster Jr., deputy county medical examiner, went to the scene.

The search for the man began the weekend of December 7 after he failed to return home after going hunting on the 6th of December. Sheriff said the search was halted on three days due to the snowstorms which hit Garrett County.

Christmas Scenes Painted By Allegany Art Students

With cardboard, cloth and colors, art students of Allegany High School transformed the windows of the Chamber of Commerce office on Baltimore Street into an eye-catching third-dimensional Christmas nativity scene.

Mark Baker, Bonnie Dawson and Linda Van Meter used their own ideas, ingenuity, talent and inexpensive materials to complete the scene under the direction of Mrs. Ethel Bruce, art teacher at Allegany.

Meanwhile other students painted Christmas scenes on windows at the County Infirmary and County Home, said Theodore P. Foote, supervisor of art education in public schools.

Judy Walkley and Judy Ringler painted the scenes at the County Infirmary and Susan Leslie, Sharon Kinsley and Patty Kolb put their talents to work at the County Home.

This is the first year that art work has been completed in downtown Cumberland, said Mr. Foote.

State Workers Plan To Seek $500 Pay Hike

23,000 Would Gain From Legislation

BALTIMORE (AP) — A bill granting about 23,000 state employes a $500 salary increase is being prepared for introduction during the forthcoming General Assembly session, the Maryland Classified Employes Association announced Thursday.

The MCEA, which represents workers on the state payroll, is drafting the legislation. The general pay raise would cost the state $11.5 million annually and would be financed by higher beer and wine taxes, said D. Worthington Pearre, MCEA executive director.

"We feel that because of the low taxes now levied against beer and wine that this is the logical place to turn to finance this needed salary adjustment," Pearre said. The last general pay hike for state employes was in 1956.

Russell S. Davis, state commissioner of personnel, said earlier

Seasonal Adult Classes End At Central 'Y'

This week three specialized seasonal classes term for ladies terminated at Central YMCA. The classes were pixie hat-making, candle-making and Christmas cookery. All other adult informal educational classes which started the first week of October, and lasted for ten weeks, have presently disbanded upon course completions.

The following classes have been held for the past 10 weeks: introduction to astronomy, oil painting, beginning German language, building a better vocabulary, ceramics, conversational Spanish language, beginners bridge instruction, junior and senior rapid reading, sketching for the beginner, ladies knitting and chochetting, conversational French language, modern ballroom dancing and ladies "slimnastics" courses.

Many of these classes will be again offered, plus many other culturally valuable classes, starting the third week of January and held one night a week, lasting ten weeks.

A recent letter to YMCA officials praised the size and cultural advantages that the Central YMCA is offering through its extensive adult informal educational courses, according to Benjamin F. Haines, program director. The letter claims that the Cumberland YMCA now boasts an adult program second to none of all YMCA's located in towns the size of Cumberland.

Three Inmates Are Returned After Hearings

Three Allegany County men, inmates at Patuxent Institute, who were given hearings yesterday at the Court House under the Post Conviction Procedure Act were remanded to the institute by Chief Judge Morgan C. Harris who ruled they are still defective delinquents.

Wilfred C. Simmons, city, who was sentenced to five years in the Maryland House of Correction on March 19, 1958 when found guilty of slashing and torturing a local woman, yesterday told Judge Harris he doesn't understand why he did it and wants a chance to prove himself in society.

John M. Robb, local attorney, represented Simmons at yesterday's hearing and pointed out that he has shown he can get along in society and has paid his penalty.

When questioned by Donald R. Mason, deputy state's attorney, Dr. Richard W. Trevaskis, Jr., local psychiatrist, testified it would be a fair risk to release Simmons.

In another hearing, Charles Larry Dewitt, city, who was tried on July 6, 1962, for indecent exposure, was sentenced to a year in the Maryland Institute for Men and later was transferred to Patuxent.

Dr. Harold Boslow, director of the institute, testified during the hearing as did Dr. Trevaskis. DeWitt was represented by George R. Hughes Jr.

The plea of Warren Robert Elliott of Barton, whose hearing was held yesterday morning, was also rejected by Judge Harris. Elliott had been sentenced to three years in the Maryland Penitentiary last February on a morals charge and later transferred to the institute.

Dr. Boslow testified that Elliott, in his opinion, has an "aggravated anti-social behaviour," and would be a "danger to society" if released. He was represented by Edward J. Ryan.

Paving Lien Collections Termed Good

Finance Commissioner Frederick J. Hill said yesterday that about 87 per cent of the paving liens billed prior to November 1 have been paid.

All of the liens were filed for street resurfacing work which was completed during the summer and fall.

He added that at least half of the liens filed by the city since November 1 have been paid.

The response, Mr. Hill said, is most gratifying as prompt payment of liens allows the city to make firm plans for additional street improvements.

One of the reasons most liens are paid within the 60-day tax free period, is that it takes four or five months to get all bills in, determine the final construction costs and to search deeds for all properties.

Officials added that anyone who has purchased property on a newly resurfaced street should check with the City Tax Office to make sure that the lien has been paid.

Yesterday the pre-holiday meal was served to the pupils of Beall in Frostburg and included turkey and dressing, mashed potatoes and gravy, cranberry relish, tossed salad, cookies and milk with an orange juice appetizer.

On Tuesday, pupils of West Side School had their turkey dinner, according to Mrs. Eaton, who said that last year 13,437 pupils and 668 teachers had the traditional Christmas meal before the close of schools for the holidays.
